Steel Steamer Rolls Over on Its Side With 2,500 Excursionists

MORE THAN 800 DEAD BODIES
TAKEN FROM RIVER AND HULL

Catastrophe in Chicago River Occurred as Vessel Was About to Leave Wharf With Happy Throng of Employees of Western Electric Co., Relatives and Friends, Women and Children in Gay Holiday Attire.

FEDERAL, STATE AND CITY OFFICIALS MAKING
INVESTIGATION FOR CAUSE AND RESPONSIBILITY

With Thousands of Horrified Spectators Ready to Aid, and the Wharf Within Grasp, Hundreds Go to Death, Despite Every Effort at Rescue—Steamer Five Minutes
Turning Over—Officers of Boat Arrested.

Chicago, July 24.—A thousand persons lost their lives in the Chicago river today by the capsizing of the excursion steamer Eastland, while warping from its wharf with more than 2,400 employees of the Western Electric Company and their relatives and friends on board, bound for a pleasure trip across Lake Michigan.

After working all day and far into the night, the bodies of 842 victims of the catastrophe, most of them women and children, were collected from temporary morgues and taken to the Second Regiment armory. Coroner Hoffman, taking into consideration estimates of yet unrecovered bodies, said he hoped the total dead would not exceed 1,000.

The Eastland, said by marine architects to have been topheavy and ballasted in an uncertain manner, turned over inside of five minutes after it began to list, pouring its gala passengers into the river or imprisoning them in its submerged hull.

Thousands Strive to Rescue.
Every effort was made by thousands of persons on the river wharf to rescue the drowning men, women and children, but many drowned almost within grasp of the river bank. Mothers were seen to death while their children were snatched to safety. Other children died in the arms of their parents who were finally saved. Hundreds of girls, freed for a day from their tasks of making telephones and other electrical apparatus in the factory of the Western Electric Company, and dressed in their smartest white frocks, drowned miserably.

A pall of sorrow hung tonight over the entire West Side of Chicago, where the majority of the victims lived. Kohn Avenue, a small street near the factory of the Western Electric Company, was in universal mourning. Every house lost from one to all its occupants in this disaster. Many of the ill-fated residents of this street tonight lay in the morgue, or beneath the steel hull of the Eastland, over which searchlights shot their blinding glare while hundreds of men searched for more bodies.

Efforts to discover the cause of the accident were begun long before the work of rescue was over. Federal and county grand juries were ordered, a coroner's jury was impaneled and all the officers and crew of the Eastland were arrested.

W. C. Steele, secretary and treasurer of the St. Joseph-Chicago Steamship Company, who owned the Eastland, built on Lake Erie in 1903 and remodeled after it became topheavy, it was said, was arrested tonight. The ship was loaded up at a police station. Steamer was leased by the Indiana Transportation Company, whose officers said they were not responsible for the licensing of the ship, and did not control the crew.

300 More Dead in Hull.
Several persons were taken alive from the cabin of the ship after it had lain on its side in the river for four hours, but the 300 others said to be in the hull, are all dead.

Under the glare of searchlights tonight, scores of men worked in the hull of the vessel to remove the bodies. The steamer lay on the bottom of the river, one side protruding like a monument to the hundreds it had drowned as it turned over.

The cause of the capsizing had not been determined tonight, but Federal, city and state officers were conducting investigations to determine whether the ship was topheavy from faulty design, was improperly ballasted, or was poorly handled in warping from the wharf.

Possibly Faulty in Design.
Marine architects asserted that the Eastland was faulty in design, that the top deck had been removed because of the tendency of the ship to list and also pointed to the possibility that the ship

BORDER SITUATION
ABOUT CLEARED UP

Naco Evacuated and No Fighting at Nogales.

FUNSTON WILL RESIST

Attacks of Mexicans Along the Border
Will Be Repelled by American Military Forces—Anxiety Over Naco City.

Washington, July 24.—Orders were issued today by the approval of President Wilson, to Major General
Funston to repel with force if necessary
any fringe into American territory during fighting between the factions in border towns, and a note was dispatched to General Carranza advising him
of that fact.

Soon afterwards a dispatch from Vera Cruz to Carranza headquarters
here said the general had specifically instructed General Calles, his commander
before Nogales, not to attack the Villa forces there and gave assurances that the Carranza forces in Naco would withdraw leaving a civil administration in charge. The garrison marched out late today.

General Carranza was informed that American border commanders had orders to prevent by force if necessary,
any shooting into American territory.
The specific method of repelling the attack was not mentioned, but the inference was American artillery would deal with any situation construed as an attack on American citizens.

General Funston was instructed to resist border attacks immediately
without the question further to Washington. General Carranza apparently gave immediate heed to the warning.

The State Department has had the border situation under consideration for several days. The Villa and Carranza agencies here have each held the other responsible for the violation of the agreement to neutralize border
towns made when General Hugh Scott, chief of staff of the army, last visited Naco.

The situation throughout Mexico as reported from various sections today
was considered discouraging by officials. Mexico City is completely cut off and presumably the hands of a band of Indians under the control of General Zapata. General Pablo Gonzales, the Carranza commander, is endeavoring to retake the town from the Zapata forces.

With the Mexican forces away from their bases, and moving away from destroyed railroads, news of the military situation is meagre. In Las Mochis, state of Sinaloa, 15,000 Mayo Indians are causing much apprehension and General Carranza, who has forces in that locality, has been asked to assist in protecting foreigners and their lives.

General Villa himself is reported to be at Torreon. He has not heard from his given column of several thousand men for nearly a week, but they were given specific instructions to protect foreigners and their property, he has told American consular agents.

Georgia Prison Commission Completes Investigation of Frank Assault.

Milledgeville, Ga., July 24.—William Green stabbed Leo M. Frank in the prison here last Saturday night because he feared the prison would be attacked by a mob bent on lynching Frank, he told Governor Harris, who came here today with the State Prison Commission to investigate prison conditions and the Frank assault.

Green said he alone planned the attack several days before it took place,
but said nothing to any one about it.
Frank's condition was much improved today. The investigation by the Governor and State Prison Commission was completed today.

BAYONNE TROUBLE
IS YET UNSETTLED

Oil Company Will Not Accede
to Strikers' Demands.

THOUSANDS ARE IDLE

Company Officials Say Strikers' Proposals Are Not Representative of
All Employees—Federal Men Stationed at Work.

New York, July 24.—Efforts to settle the strike of 1,500 Bayonne oil workers, which has been in progress
for a week and has been marked by serious riots and the killing of three strikers, failed tonight when the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey notified the men that it would not accede to their modified demands. The strikers then voted not to return to work on Monday. Nearly 4,000 more men from the Tidewater company's plant, thrown out of work by the strike, will also remain idle.

The strikers are willing to accept a 15 per cent increase in wages with a 50-hour week or to return to work Monday morning, leaving the several hundred unemployed men to be paid
by a board of arbitration to be applied later.

The only disorder of the day occur-
ed late today when a crowd of 400
men attacked Max Lettner, a retired United States soldier, mistaking him for a guard. A riot call brought the policemen who yielded their clubs, putting any situation construed as an attack on American citizens.

The proposals of the strikers were refused because the company officials claimed they did not represent all employees of the company.

John A. Moffett, one of the two federal mediators, was handed a copy of the company's answer. The mediators brought the strikers' committee in touch with the Standard people. However, Mr. Moffett said he did not feel discouraged. "I feel that we will yet succeed in reaching an amicable understanding," he added.

Although the strikers and their friends were in an ugly mood tonight,
no disorder was reported. The authorities, however, feared an outbreak tomorrow and were making every effort to cope with any fresh disturbance.

FLEA OF LITTLE GIRL
GETS FATHER'S PARDON

Governor Harris Promises That E.
Stripling His Freedom.

Milledgeville, Ga., July 24.—The plea of a six-year-old child to Governor Harris today won a promise of freedom for Thomas Edgar Stripling, who was arrested in Danville, Va., in 1911,
where he was chief of police, and returned here to spend his life in prison for murder, after he had escaped from jail 14 years before, while awaiting transfer to the Georgia prison farm.

Learning that the Governor would visit the prison today, Beulah Lucille Stripling, the little daughter—obtained permission to be present and make her appeal. "Mr. Governor, won't you please turn my papa loose," she pleaded. "He is sick, and there is nobody home to work for us. Please turn him loose,
Mr. Governor."

Governor Harris, visibly affected by the childish plea, patted her on the head, and replied: "Little girl, run and tell your papa that I'm going to turn him out of here. Tell him that I am going to pardon him." Later, after the prisoner's daughter had told him of the decision, the Governor himself visited Stripling. He did not announce the date the pardon would be given.

Philadelphia, July 24.—Dr. Edward Bedloe, a retired veteran of the American consular service and one of the founders of the Clover club, Philadelphia's widely known dining organization, died today after a long illness. He was 97 years old.

GERMANS TIGHTEN
GRIP ON WARSAW

Critics Say Abandonment is Now More Probable.

RUSSIANS HOLDING ON

That They Control the Immediate Front of Polish Capital is Evidenced by German Official Statement.

London, July 24.—The Austro-German armies seem unable to force the Russians from the important positions to the immediate west of Warsaw and from the line along the Lublin-Cholm railway, but the German victories in Northern Poland and north of the Polish capital have tightened their grip on the city and military critics
say that the abandonment of Warsaw
by the Russians again becomes more probable.

After weeks of battering, the German forces for the first time have crossed the Narew river north of Warsaw and now have a considerable weight of men on the south bank of that river.

The fight in Southern Courland, according to German columns, has resulted in something akin to a crushing victory. It is stated that the Germans cut up the retreating troops badly,
dispersing those which were not killed,
wounded or captured.

Russians Hold Front.
The Russians are holding the immediate Warsaw front. It is plainly evidenced by a German official statement which refers to only minor operations in this area and tells of a comparatively insignificant number of prisoners taken.

The Turks again have assailed the British left on the Gallipoli peninsula.
The attacking party apprehended the British trenches with the expectation
they have heretofore shown, but the Turks withered before the machine gun fire and the British lost no ground.

Today was the anniversary of Austria's ultimatum to Serbia, which besought was followed by the great war.
The Serbian army has been heard little for several months, but it would be no surprise if something were developed soon along this front with the Serbian forces.

YOUNG GERMAN CHARGED WITH PLOT TO BLOW UP BIG PLANTS

Arrested in Cleveland, After Investigation by Federal Officials.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 24.—A young German, 26 years old, whose name the authorities refused to divulge, was arrested tonight on a charge of suspicion
in connection with an alleged plot to blow up the plants of the American Steel and Wire Company, the Peerless
Motor Car Company and the White Company.

His arrest followed nearly a week of investigation by federal authorities.
Two of the man's fellow employees
charged that he told them of an elaborate plan to blow up the plants by means of nitro-glycerine bombs to be dropped from great box kites. He is quoted as saying he could do it, and that he would "get big money for doing it."

He denied tonight that he has any knowledge of explosives, and declared
he had said merely that "if it could be done without killing anyone, the war would be stopped." Search of his boarding place failed to disclose anything indicating that he intended carrying out the plans attributed to him.

REMINGTON STRIKE IS VIRTUALLY AT AN END

Agreement Whereby Work
Will be Resumed Monday.

Working Schedule of Forty-Eight Hours Will Be Instituted August 1—Agreement Ratified
by Machinists Last Night.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 23.—With the ratification tonight by the machinists
of the agreement reached between the labor leaders and the Remington Arms and Ammunition Company and the Stewart Construction Company, the strike at the Arms company's plants virtually came to an end tonight, and the men will be back at work Monday morning. The structural iron workers took similar action during the day.

The agreement provides for a regular weekly working schedule of 48
hours for both day and night shifts beginning August 1, any time worked in excess of these hours to be regarded as overtime, for which extra pay will be given.

BERNSTORFF VEAY
HOPEFUL, IT SEEMS

Believes Portion New Note Favorable to Germany.

BRITAIN IS INVOLVED

Constructs Freedom of the Seas Clause
to Also Embrace Germany's Greatest Enemy—Abandonment Not Insisted Upon.

Washington, July 24.—Count Bern-
Washington today to remain away
from the capital until instructions
from his government or new developments make it necessary to confer
again with officials here.

It was learned in German circles
here tonight that the German interpretation of the statement in the last American note, that lives of non-combatants may not be put in jeopardy
unless a vessel resists or seeks to escape, was expected to satisfy the German military authorities of the fact that the United States has not insisted on a complete abandonment of submarine warfare as such.

Count Von Bernstorff viewed with satisfaction the statement in the American note that the United States would insist upon the freedom of the seas
"from whatever quarter violated." He hoped this will be accepted in Germany
as a proof that the Washington government intends to insist upon its rights with the same firmness toward Great Britain as elsewhere.

Conflicting reports reached the German embassy today as to what occurred in the Orduin case. According to statements made by some of the passengers on the ship, no torpedo was fired by the German submarine from which the liner escaped. They saw only the shell fire at the ship.

COMMENT IS RESERVED.
Berlin Papers Have Not Yet Received
Text of Note.

Berlin, July 24.—The text of the American note has not yet been published in Berlin but the afternoon papers print a rather exhaustive authoritative summary. For the most part,
the papers reserve comment until the full text of the note is known.

The Lok Anzeiger in an apparently inspired article, asserts its confidence that Germany in utilizing its submarines in the future will endeavor to combine advantage for Germany with the least possible detriment to neutral interests, and expresses the belief that the American note will furnish ground
for further negotiations.

The Germania and the Borsen Zeitung briefly note the note in similar terms. The Germania assures its readers that the recent inactivity of the submarines was due to bad weather
and not to a cessation of submarine warfare.

COURT OF INQUIRY COMPLETES
INVESTIGATION AT ANNAPOLIS

Findings Will First Be Reviewed by Judge Advocate General.

Annapolis, Md., July 24.—The Court of Inquiry which has been investigating irregularities in examinations at the Naval Academy, since June 7, completed its work and adjourned today. Its findings and recommendations to the Navy Department will be reviewed by the judge advocate general, who will make his recommendations to Secretary Daniels, who, in turn, will lay the whole matter before President Wilson.

For Large Reserve Army.
The War Department plans look toward the development of a large reserve army with a minimum of 500,000 men and with adequate provision for the use of the militia and men who have previously served in the regular army.

The Navy Department, it has been indicated, will ask for at least 30, and possibly 35 additional submarines. The General Board's recommendations are also expected to include a number of battle cruisers, a minimum of four dreadnaughts and a proportional number of scout cruisers and auxiliary craft, such as fuel ships and submarine tenders. The department is deeply engaged in experiments with aeroplanes and submarines and also with attempts to find a practical means of defense for battleships against torpedoes.

gress—Expresses Confidence.

Morhead City, N. C., July 24.—Secretary Daniels, who is spending a few days here with his family, said today
he was preparing to present a tentative outline of his recommendations for the navy's part in the program of national defense, to President Wilson as soon as he returns from the summer
White House at Cornish, N. H. He was confident that Congress would co-operate patriotically and cordially with the program President Wilson will recommend.

MILITARY PROGRAM WILL BE BIG ONE

Believed Budget to Congress Will Double Last Year's.

BIGGER ARMY AND NAVY

Departments Preparing Plans to Meet Any Emergency—President Will Confer on Programme When He Returns from Cornish.

Washington, July 24.—Announcement from the White House today that President Wilson had directed Secretaries Garrison and Daniels to report to him a programme of national defense caused widespread comment. It became known that several weeks ago
the President discussed the question at length that his cabinet with the immediate result that both the War and Navy departments began secret preparation of plans to meet any emergency and also to establish a permanent policy to be presented to Congress for adequate national defense.

The White House statement gave no reason for the announcement, stating merely that the President would confer, on his return from Cornish, N. H., with Secretaries Daniels and Garrison to formulate a sane, reasonable and practical programme of national defense. It was indicated clearly, however, in official quarters that the determination to expedite such plans as were being made resulted from a consideration of the many possibilities of the present international situation.

President Emphasizes Importance.
The President in letters to Secretaries Garrison and Daniels early last week calling for the reports, made no
reference to any particular situation,
but emphasized the importance of the entire subject of national defense. He wishes to make the navy as efficient
and serviceable as any in the world;
to see the regular army adequately developed and equipped and the citizenry retained to arms in a way consistent with American traditions and which will commend itself to practical and patriotic men.

For several weeks, Secretary Garrison has been in conference with members of the General Staff shaping plans for presentation to the President. The General Board of the navy has been its usual trip to Newport for this summer and is preparing its recommendations for Secretary Daniels. The President wishes the reports ready when he returns from Cornish and the indications are that the entire influence of the administration will be exerted when Congress convenes to secure appropriations adequate to the defense which will be formulated. He has not indicated whether or not he will call Congress into special session. This depends largely on developments in the international situation.

While there was widespread discussion today of the administration's plans for the national defense, the pre-valing interest was in the probable size of the appropriations to be asked. Among army and navy officers who are familiar with the latest developments and who are enthusiastic over the backing which President Wilson is giving to the programme as so far developed, the belief prevails that a military budget practically double that of last year, will be presented.
The army, it was believed, would seek
at least $200,000,000 and the navy payments as high as $250,000,000.

For Large Reserve Army.

NO MORE MOTORCYCLES AND BIKES AFTER 1915

Rural Carriers Must Have Automobiles or Horses.

P. O. Department Decides Bicycles and Motorcycles Have Not Sufficient Capacity Except for Injurious Riders.

(Special Star Telegram.)
Washington, July 24.—Postmaster General Burleson issued an order today prohibiting the use of bicycles and motorcycles in the rural delivery service after January 1 next. Mr. Burleson says after that date carriers must use automobiles instead of motorcycles and bicycles.

According to an official statement given out at the department, there are approximately 3,000 routes upon which bicycles and motorcycles are used to carry the mails. It is held by the department that this type of vehicle does not have the carrying capacity needed for the parcel post. The elimination of this kind of vehicle, the department says, will also tend to equalize the working conditions of the carrier force, as carriers using motorcycles are especially liable to injury which results in great expense to the government since the passage of a law by Congress authorizing the government to pay for injury and death to postal employees while on duty.

Ensign F. G. Blandel, U. S. N., who is attached to the division of naval militia affairs in the Navy Department, will leave Washington on July 27th on a tour of inspection of the North Carolina Naval Militia and to assist the State authorities in the installation of a comprehensive and a proper system for the accounting and care of Federal property loaned to the State of North Carolina for the use of the naval militia. Ensign Blandel will first confer with Adjutant General Young at Raleigh and will later accompany General Young on an inspection of the naval militia at Newbern, Washington, Beaufort, Hertford and Elizabeth City. Chief Yeoman Bley will accompany Ensign Blandel on the trip, and will be assigned for duty with the naval militia of North Carolina temporarily under the supervision of the Inspector-Instructor Lieut. E. H. Connor, P. R. A.

MORE THAN 800 DEAD BODIES TAKEN FROM RIVER AND HULL

shore threw out ropes and dragged in those who could not swim. Lifelines. Employees of commission firms along the river threw crates, chicken coops and other floatable things into the current, but most of these were swept away by the stream, which runs five miles an hour.

Death Within Wharf's Grasp.
Boats put out, tugs rushed to the scene with shrieking whistles and many men snatched off coats and shoes and sprang into the river to aid the drowning. With thousands of spectators ready to aid and the wharf within grasp, hundreds went to death despite every effort at rescue.

One mother grasped her two children in her arms as she slipped from the steamer into the water. One child was torn from her by the other and the other was saved. Fathers were drowned after aiding their wives and children to safety.

One man was seen to cling to the side of the wharf while two women and three children stepped up his body as on a ladder to safety. He fell into the river as the last one of the five reached the pier. Instances of heroism were almost as numerous as the number of persons on the scene. Boats as soon as full took rescued passengers to the wharf or to the steamer Theodore Roosevelt, which was tied up opposite the Eastland. In an hour, the water was cleared of excursionists. Those who had been taken to land had sunk or were swirling down the river towards the drainage canal locks at Lockport, Ill., many miles away.

The locks were raised to stop the current and arrangements were made to take bodies from the river along its course through the southwest part of Chicago. Shortly after the water left its source through the southwest part of the Eastland's hull, cutting through its steel plates with gas flames. Divers were hurried into underwater suits. A tug was moored as a bridge between the pier and the capsized ship.

Morgues of Wholesale Houses.
As the divers gained entrance to the hull, the scene of distress moved from the time being from the river to the waterfront wharves. Merchant houses of wholesale companies along the river were thrown open and bodies were placed in the wharves and the scores of persons rescued from the water were injured and these were taken to the Iroquois Hospital built in memory of the six hundred women and children and a few men who were burned to death in the Iroquois theatre some years ago.

Efforts to resuscitate those taken from the river was generally unsuccessful. Only two or three were thus saved. It was also said many of the injured would die.

The whole city was in consternation over the catastrophe. Word of the accident spread rapidly and to the thousands already at or near the wharf either thousands added themselves. The Clark Street bridge near the wharf crowded until it threatened to collapse. Streets had to be cleared by the police to allow the passage of ambulances.

Business men sent their automobiles and motor trucks to help aid the injured and carry away the dead. The warehouse soon was filled with bodies and other dead were taken to the Second Regiment armory, a mile away.

City is Mourning.
Mayor William Hale Thompson was in San Francisco and Chief of Police C. C. Healey also was out of town, but Acting Mayor McQuinn sent out a request that the city display signs of mourning. Flags on public buildings were placed at half mast and many places were draped with mourning. Baseball games were postponed and festivities largely ceased.

While those on land were disposing of the dead, injured and rescued, the divers in the heart of the sunken vessel went up an almost constant stream of corpses from the submerged decks. First it was a gaily dressed girl in her teens who had been caught between a pile of chairs and a cabin wall. Next it was a slight boy, gathered in the lifeless arms of a fond father, who

Strikers Attacking Bayonne, N. J., Standard Oil Plant, Where Several Were Shot to Death

The upper photograph here shows a small section of a large crowd of men and boys, strikers among the employees of the Bayonne, N. J., plant of the Standard Oil Company, attacking the buildings and guards at the works. These men climbed a hill just back of the works to throw rocks over the yard at guards. Photographers who stood behind to get the picture were in imminent danger of a volley from the guards.

The lower set of pictures shows photographs of individuals among the strikers throwing rocks at the buildings and guards. In the lower left hand corner is a man about to draw a pistol from his hip pocket.

RED SPRINGS STIRRED BY GRACIOUS REVIVAL

All Pastors and Churches Co-operating in Services

More Than 100 Professions During First Week of Meetings Conducted by Dr. Watt Holcomb, of Nashville, Tennessee.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Red Springs, N. C., July 24.—This entire community is passing through a most gracious revival of religion. The meetings are being held in the large brick warehouse which has a seating capacity of about 3,000. The meetings are being conducted by Rev. Watt Holcomb, of Nashville, Tenn., a son-in-law of the late Rev. Sam P. Jones. It is a union meeting, all the pastors and people of the town and community taking part. At the close of this, the first week, more than 100 conversions and reclamations have been the result.

Dr. Holcomb is a man of most wonderful personality and magnetism and holds his vast audience as if by magic. He resorts to no emotional measures, but relies solely and entirely on the Holy Spirit. It may be said of him that he is filled with the spirit and his one great burning desire is to see men and women saved. Never before in the history of this section, have our people experienced such a revival of true and unfeigned religion.

Dr. Holcomb has held union meetings in most of the large cities of the South and West and his services are always in demand. The music is an especial feature of the meeting, a large number of trained voices led by Dr. Holcomb's own singer, Mr. Hugh Clotworthy, of Aiken, S. C. The spirit of unity among the different pastors and their people is indeed beautiful. The meetings will continue through next week, and it is the general consensus of opinion among our people that the influence of this great meeting will be felt in the hearts of our people and seen in their daily lives when Dr. Holcomb shall have gone.

ROBESON JAIL DOORS ARE STANDING OPEN

Lumberton Working on Town Lighting Proposition

Temperature Ranges From 106 to 82
—New Store Building—Gasoline Cheaper—Crop Prospects Fine
—Tobacco Market.

(Special Star Correspondence.)
Lumberton, N. C., July 24.—Wonderful weather changes have occurred here during the week. Last Monday the mercury climbed up to an even 100. This morning it was down to 82. These figures were obtained from the government weather station and, of course, are official. Many people have had fires in their homes during the early morning hours, and little talk is had of going to the mountains or the seashore. The ice men are not rushed at all.

When Judge Whedbee adjourned court here last week only one prisoner was left in jail and all that was required to close the jail was for that lone prisoner to make bond for his appearance at next term of court. Thursday night of this week the bond was furnished and for two days the jail doors have been standing open without a single occupant. When such a thing happened here before no one consulted seems to recall. The Star man visited the jail yesterday and found it as clean as any building can be kept. It is said that not a fly has been seen in the jail during the summer.

The town authorities held a meeting yesterday afternoon, at which the lighting problem of the town was discussed. Representatives of the Tiddin Power Company and the Western Electric Company were present and submitted propositions for equipping and selling current to the town. At a recent election the voters rejected the proposition to sell the plant, and now it is proposed to buy current and charge the system from 220 d. c. to 110 a. c. Under present conditions current is furnished only part of the time, while if the change is made it will be on all the time.

Recorder E. M. Britt has made it plain this week that the who persist in violating the speed ordinance may expect trouble. New cars are continually coming in and must be tried out, and it is said that several plainclothesmen are walking around with stop-watches in their pockets. There is not a car driver in Lumberton who would run over a little child for the world, and where so many little ones are on the streets if patting is not taken something is going to happen.

New Store Building.
Mr. J. A. Branch is having material placed on his lot on Chestnut street, between Third and Fourth streets, for the erection of a two-story brick store building 21x60. Mr. S. A. Branch is the contractor. Work will begin in a few days and will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible. Chestnut street is rapidly becoming an important business street and in a few years will cause Elm street merchants to take notice sure enough.

Gasoline. For some cause unknown to the writer, has dropped in price in Lumberton from 30 to 15 cents a gallon. Messrs. White and Gough are charged with being the cause of the fall in price. At any rate they have installed a "Rowser Red Sentry Filtered Gasoline" stand on the edge of the sidewalk on the north side of their building, and all motorists are urged to use it. Since town gas is so rapidly becoming a service item, free water is also furnished. Automobile owners are wearing smiles.

In the Pastime. The Lumberton now has one of the best picture shows to be found outside the large cities, and the quality of pictures is as good as those seen anywhere, regardless of the size of the town. Since town gas has been remodeled visitors are astonished and delighted at the great improvement. To give an idea of the grade of pictures that the Pastime is showing, mention the coming week the "Virginian" will be shown; Tuesday, "The Exploits of Elaine"; Thursday, "The Gadders"; and Friday, "Such a Little Queen," featuring Mary Pickford.

Mr. Lee G. Stone, who has been playing with Georgia and Alabama ball teams this season, returned home last night, having been wired for by the home town. He is regarded as an exceptionally fine player and Lumberton feels like he should be with his home team.

While in conversation with the writer last night, one of Lumberton's leading physicians stated that general health conditions at this time are excellent. Little sickness of serious nature-prevailing.

Crop reports from various sections of the county are very encouraging, especially as to the corn crop, which is said to be unusually promising.

Tobacco Market Opens Thursday.
Next Thursday, the 26th, will witness the opening tobacco sale at the Farmers' Warehouse in Lumberton. Mr. E. O. Bransford is the manager and is said to be one of the best tobacco men in the country. He is said to have been the founder of the tobacco business at Mullins, S. C. A number of buyers have been secured for the season and prices equal to any are expected to prevail.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Johnson will leave for Hickory this week to spend some time with relatives.

Miss Mayes Glasgow, music teacher at the graded school, left this morning for Shelby to visit her parents. Miss Glasgow continued her music class until last Friday. After spending a few days with her parents she will go to New York to take a special course, returning to Lumberton in time for the fall term of school.

Mrs. T. C. Johnson is spending some time in Asheville.

Mrs. G. H. McLeod and daughter, Miss Ned, and son, Mr. Radson, left yesterday for the mountains.

Mr. A. M. Rhyme, of Stanley, N. C., arrived last night to visit his son, Mr. J. L. Rhyme, of the Seaboard.

Mrs. Walker, of Columbus, Ga., is visiting her sister, Mrs. N. H. Jones.

Miss Ella Andrews, of Morganton, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Townsend.

The Post of Provence.
From his early romantic success to his golden maturity Frederic Mistral, the Provencal poet, had a sort of legendary destiny almost unheard of in the modern world. When he came into the dining room of the little hotel in Arles where he used to lunch after a visit to his museum even the stiff backed British tourists found themselves leaping to their feet with the rest of the company and cordially returning his fine salute. Travelers who have had the fortune to catch a glimpse of him on some fete day at Arles or Nîmes or Orange will never forget the impression he made. Standing on the stone bench of a Roman arena, lifting his black sombrero as the close packed crowds rose in great swelling waves to break into the shout "Mistral!" he seemed the very symbol and type of the legendary youth and joy and beauty of Provence. His natural eminence was tempered by such natural simplicity that popular response to it was as spontaneous as it was sincere. His gracious presence defied time, and he wore old age like a wreath of myrtle. —Elizabeth Shepley Sergeant in Century.

ROCKY MOUNT AND TRUCKERS
DIVIDE A DOUBLEHEADER

Effective Work by the Pitchers a Feature of the Games.
Rocky Mount, N. C., July 24.—Effective work by the pitchers tells the story of the equal division of the day's double bill between the Tar Heels and the Truckers. The first game, which was to have been a seven inning affair but journey until the ninth when three safe bingles sent the only run of the game across the Down Homers, was decidedly an O'Brien affair and the local finger was touched but for two safe hits and never had second or third base occupied.
In the twilight clash of seven innings O'Brien was sent back against the Truckers while the new battery from the Savannah club of the Sally League in Gausey and Shert was sent against the locals. The visitors found O'Brien for eleven safe outs and three runs while Gausey was immensely effective in the pinches and he gave up but two safe hits. The finger really has whitened the Truckers' center gardener for salvation. In several instances this fellow cut off hits with almost superhuman effort and he chased into the far corners or close to the base lines and grabbed drives that would ordinarily have gone for safe ones. Especially was the game saved by this fellow when he chased on a dead run into the center left field fence and caught Edwards' drive with his back to the diamond. His fielding was the sensation of the contest.

SEAGATE DEFEATS WINTER PARK
Snappy Aggregation Gives Game With 1 to 0 Score.

A snappy aggregation of ball players congregated at Seagate yesterday afternoon. The opposing teams being Seagate and Winter Park and the former winning by the close score of 1 to 0. Maulsby made a three-base hit for Winter Park, while Jones made a home run for Seagate. Batteries for Winter Park were Hart and Page; for Seagate Standand and Bell. The game was featured by the fast fielding on both sides.

Watha Defends Teachers.
Watha, July 24.—Watha this afternoon before a large crowd of fans, on her home ground, gave Teachers another chance to win back their early, in a game of baseball in which Watha defeated Teachers by a score of 10 to 5. Batteries for Watha were: Garrison and Daniels. Batteries for Teachers were: Rowe and Southerland.

THEATRICAL

Tomorrow night will be a Red Letter night theatrically for Wilmington, as upon that occasion the 1915-16 season will not only be inaugurated, but what is hoped to make a permanent stock company engagement will make its debut. This stock attraction is not what is generally known as a "repertoire show," so theatregoers should not get the two confused, but it is a regular stock company, such as play the larger cities every season. The company that the Academy presents was care-

Academy stock will present Margaret Mayo's big comedy sensation, "Baby Mine." A finished performance will be given, the cast being superb and the production being a lavish one from a scenic standpoint.

At the Grand Tomorrow.
"Aristocracy," another great Farinow, is on at the Grand tomorrow, under the personal direction of Daniel Frohman in four parts.
Mr. Tyrone Power, the celebrated actor of the legitimate stage, will be featured in the leading role. It is a splendid cast that supports Mr. Power in "Aristocracy," the four-part adaptation by the Famous Players of Bronson Howard's drama of society. The fully selected and includes such well known Thespians as Miss Peggy Cameron, Miss Billy Long, Allan Robinson and a host of others. A glance at the personnel will show the strength and the importance of the attraction.

Besides the strong company the management will make each presentation a production, which means that all special scenery and big efforts will be used in staging the play. In order to accomplish this a well known scenic artist is now on duty at the academy and his business is to paint new scenery for every production.
The scale of prices for the performances will be small, the highest price running to 35 cents, when every offering will be of the $1.50 brand and for the use of which the company will pay a handsome royalty. Seats for tomorrow night are on sale at the academy.

picture goes over strongly in spite of the subsidiary action that divide but never appreciably lessen the interest in the chief of the plot. Mr. Power has magnetism, the quality of likeability. Ella is a most convincing portrayal of the successful business man who has no patience with those seeking the society of a self-selected division of the community. Marguerite Skirvin is the young wife of Stockton, not much older than his daughter Virginia. Miss Skirvin gives a good interpretation of the young woman who was fascinated even as she was repelled by the unscrupulous prince. Edna Mayo is the daughter who, through the belief that the man she loves is engaged to another, marries the prince. Miss Mayo gives a performance of marked strength and feeling.
Arthur Hoops is the polished scoundrel whose hastily planned and executed marriage to Virginia terminates with the ceremony and who promptly proceeds to make love to the step-mother of his wife.

row night, the opening occasion, can be secured either at Plummer's or the academy box office.
For this week, commencing in a blaze of glory tomorrow night, the "Aristocracy." There are city mansions and rural palaces; there are great lawns and gardens, materially contributing to the atmosphere of the story. This comestopion of the program will be furnished by the Mina company, in a rousing one-reel farce entitled "Father Forgoit." Charles Chaplin, the famous comedian of the screen, will be the feature for Tuesday in his latest two-reel comedy, "The Woman." It contains many funny little actions never before seen, as well as housing surprises on the subject of "A Woman." Thursday the Paramount Company will present "The Circus Man." Friday Anita Stewart and Earle Williams make their appearance in "The Goddess."

Ella Hall—Bob Leonard—Hijon.
Pretty little Ella Hall has an appeal all her own. Her charm is of a different sort, and playing in conjunction with Bob Leonard, the combination is simply irresistible. She is not only a consummate little actress but her art is of such a nature that one feels that she is bringing photographs to unwarped life.

In "Betty's Dream Hero," a two-reel Laemmle drama featuring tomorrow's bill at the Bijou, Miss Hall is cast as a dainty little Southern girl of the Civil War period. Can't you imagine her sweetly wistful face framed in the quaint bonnet of a Southern belle of war times? In her crinolene gown and poke bonnet she is positively bewitching, and she exerts an appeal impossible for merely beautiful actresses to achieve.
Can't you imagine handsome Bob Leonard as her Northern lover in the uniform of a Northern officer? Then you know something of the charm of this play of love, adventure and the chances of war. It is full of happy surprises.

"The Violin-Maker" is a great single reel drama produced by and featuring Lon Chaney in the leading role, that has a strong heart appeal that will hit every spectator.
There is another one of those great "Lady Baffles" comedy screams, "Lady Baffles Aids Cupid," with Max Asher and Gail Henry doing the leading, fun making. There will also be a big pathé scenic—one of those beautiful colored films.

Asheville, N. C., July 24.—With the attendance of delegates daily increasing, the annual Sunday school conference of the Southern Methodist church at Lake Junaluska, today heard the final reports of the general Sunday school board, marked improvements being shown in all departments.

TOP O' THE MORNING

"How much owest thou to thy Lord?"

Over against the Treasury this Lord.

The Master silent sits; whilst, unaware Of that Celestial Presence still and

fair,
The people pass or pause upon their way.

And some go laden with His treasure's
sweet,

And dressed in costly robes of His device

To cover hearts of stone and souls of ice,

Which bear no token to the Master's feet.

And still the hours roll on serene and
fair

The Master keeps His watch, but who can tell

The thoughts that in His tender spirit dwell

As one by one we pass Him unaware?

For this is He who, on one awful day, Cast down for us a price so vast and great,

That He was left, for our sakes, bare
and dead.

Having given Himself our mighty debt
to pay!

—SELECTED.

Pessimists are pests.

After all, the chief physical need of man is food instead of money.

A man who works for himself only,
often has to depend on insincerity.

We'll now tune our lyres and sing:
"I want to go back home and stay."

Sallabury and Concord are having a fight, and each is using weapons more powerful than Krupp artillery. The newspapers are firing hot shots at long range.

When peace ideas dominate, Teddy has nothing to say. When war talk starts, so does Teddy. By that token we know the kind of man he would like to be if he only had the chance.

Some day we may understand why Great Britain does not want cotton and food stuffs to reach Germany, and why Germany does not want Great Britain to be the unmolested mistress
of the seas.

Says the New Orleans States: "Some concern is expressed over the statement that whiskey has been eliminated
from the United States Pharmacopoeia." Yes, but that's the new pharmacopoeia, so our old friend B. Artist will hang right on to the one father left him and henceforth will preserve it as a precious heirloom.

Colonel Roosevelt is for peace but
he stipulates honor as the consideration,
so far as our relations with the European nations are concerned. However, so far as ordinary mollycoddlers
are concerned, the Colonel makes a noise as if he will always be at war with them. At the same time he has never captured a mollycoddler.

The head of a large chemical concern
says he can make dyes if the government will help him. In other words, he and the government together can make dyes, but the government is expected to do its part while he makes all the money. We know millions of farmers who would like to have the government for a silent partner who expects nothing.

A Wilmington lady decided on purchasing a dress at a cost of numerous wheels. Her husband warned her that the world's awfullest war is being fought and furthermore expressed the belief that the world is coming to an end. With thoughts revolving around that new dress, the lady reflected about a second and replied: "Well, if the world is coming to an end, you won't need the money and I certainly will need the dress to make a decent appearance when both of us stand together before all creation on the last day."
When a woman has a good reason for getting nice clothes, she gets them
from the right sort of man.

WILSON STANDS PAT.

The latest note to Germany leaves
the American position just where it was when it was declared in the very first of the three notes of the correspondence. President Wilson does not recede a particle from the principle contended for by this government, but the new matter in it is a friendly but positive rejection of the collateral and counter proposals made in the two replies of the German government. Hence,
the American note, in the last analysis, simply reaffirms the American position, and turns a deaf ear to the German replies as containing matter irrelevant to the main question to which America desires to commit Germany.

President Wilson pins Germany down to the principle contended for by America without any ifs and ands and pro-visos. Therefore, Germany is in the position of having all her replies rejected as totally unsatisfactory. Consequently it is up to her to reply definitely to the direct question as the only way to satisfy America.

Germany must now understand that the Lusitania incident is regarded as an incidental offense and that a repetition of that mode of warfare would be construed as "deliberately unfriendly." That does not mean that it would be regarded as hostile but as an act severing the friendly relations of the two governments, whatever the possibilities in that might be.

The last note of President Wilson makes no threat of any recourse on the part of America, but it definitely fixes the status of the Lusitania affair
as an incident shocking and displeasing to America, and plainly states that a similar incident will bring on a breach of the friendly relations between Germany and America. That puts it up to Germany to bring about a breach by another act like that of sinking the Lusitania and causing the destruction of the lives of Americans.

What the possibilities of such a breach of friendship would be, has to be conjectured. It depends upon what Germany may or may do in the future.
How far President Wilson would go in the event of a breach depends upon
what he construes as an interference with "the freedom of the seas"—whether or not submarine warfare of the Lusitania kind would be so construed.

This country has declared "freedom of the seas," from "whatever quarter violated," and that is but an intimation to Great Britain that her interference with neutral commerce
also comes under that head. Of course, the ultimate "cost" may be war, and certainly that is what is bound to be a future cause for war, as it has been in the past. Nations which violate that principle are to blame for conflicts which hereafter are bound to occur, if naval powers follow the present examples adopted by Great Britain and Germany. If the freedom of the seas is not settled in a friendly way by the powers, they must eventually make war the arbiter on that now upset and unsettled point.

The nations must have a new affirmation of that principle by all, else it will call for more armaments and more war until it is settled in the interest of the smallest as well as the largest of the nations.

ENCROACHMENT ON THE STREETS.

The Savannah News discusses what it calls "The Encroachment Evil,"
from which it is inferred that the Georgia city is suffering the inconvenience, annoyance and nuisance constituted by certain encroachments on the pavements and streets of the city.

All cities which are modernizing are having such encroachments removed
and are asserting their power to do so.
Certainly they would not now grant privileges to private property owners to encroach upon the sidewalks, as hinted by the Morning News in the following:

"There never will be a better time
than the present to put a stop to encroachments by private property owners upon the sidewalks. Every time permission to encroach is granted so much more difficult will it be to deny
the next request for similar permission. And every such request that is granted takes something away from the public and gives it to a private person."

Right there is where city authorities
should be given to understand that they cannot give to a private person
what belongs to the public. The streets and pavements are the public domain
and only the legislature can dispose of it. No private person and no city government can legally close or obstruct a street or an alley, once opened and devoted to public use so long as it becomes public property by law.
Probably some city authorities don't know that or else overlook it, and in all such cases the public can recover
its right of domain by simply resorting to the courts. In the same way obstructions and encroachments can be removed by resort to the courts. No supposed is the Savannah paper to granting permission for encroachments
that it goes on to say:

"Many sidewalks in Savannah are very narrow anyhow and others are so taken up with stoops that the wide places along them are of little value to the public. It is difficult to believe that the majority of the people of the city favors any further encroachments,
or that it is not, on the other hand,
thoroughly in favor of putting a stop
to them now with the understanding that as old houses that encroach upon the sidewalks are torn away the new buildings in their places will not be permitted to take up any part of the public's property. It is not easy to see what argument there is for permitting any more encroachments. Every time a stoop is built on the sidewalk, the public has to give up some of its space,
its walking room is narrowed, the appearance of the street is made less attractive, and an obstruction is put in the way of pedestrians. The public gives up something and gets nothing in return. It would seem to be Council's duty as the representative of the public to make no more concessions of that sort."

All of that is to the point elsewhere
as well as in Savannah. The people can act themselves when their city authorities do not proceed to act for the public. Furthermore, encroachments permitted by the city fix responsibility
on it for damages, in the event of damage to property or persons. So do all encroachments of ancient standing,
since failure to remove them is evidence of contributory negligence on the part of the municipal corporation. Almost daily we see a dangerous obstruction on a down-town pavement. Recently an aged gentleman stumbled over it and might have been killed. It would have been a clear case against the city and one for the city against the property owner.

THE WORLD'S WHEAT

Fortunately the world's wheat crop
is large and it is hoped other food crops have been raised in proportion. Our own crop of wheat is the largest ever made, but every bushel of it will be needed on account of the war in Europe. With millions of men taken from the fields all over Europe, the supply of food crops certainly must be less over there, so that many nations will have to depend upon this country and upon Argentina and India, the present available sources of supply.

As explained by the Philadelphia Record, the war does not directly cause an increased consumption of wheat, but it must necessarily cause a shortage
in the commercial supply, because from the Marne to the Dnieper and the Baltic to the Adriatic the acreage of wheat must be greatly reduced, and unless the Dardanelles shall be forced,
very little wheat can be exported from Russia, our chief rival in supplying countries that do not raise enough grain for themselves. What has become of the Danubian wheat the grain statisticians do not know.

The Record suggests that the Danubian supply may have reached Germany and Austria, but if not, it remains un-marketed. The war, therefore, creates an exceptional demand for wheat from countries that are in a position to supply it. To meet the world need thus created this country, Argentina
and India have unusually large supplies, which are all the more necessary
because the recent crop in Australia
was a very scanty one and the exports are hardly more than nominal. Our own crop last year was 125,000,000 bushels greater than the crop of 1913,
which was the largest we had ever gathered, and the inability of Russia to export has enabled us to market our huge surplus at high prices. The crop which is now being gathered bids fair to be even larger than last year, and likely to exceed 1,000,000,000 bushels.
Thus, we shall continue to be able to export very heavily to countries that cannot get wheat as usual from Russia and the Balkan countries.

ITS RUSSIA'S FIGHT

In an editorial, the esteemed Raleigh Times inquires: "Is Russia Waver-ing?" Russia is doing the best she can,
but as to whether she is ready to throw up the sponge, only time will disclose. Any hint of it now can only be conjecture, though, perhaps, it may be logically based. The Times interesting remarks:

"Russian soldiers and newspapers
probably have refrained from commenting on the fact that Russia has been bearing the brunt of the war so far, but this fact has not been overlooked by persons who have had no
special reasons for remaining silent.
The czar's forces have been doing practically all of the fighting for several months, while the English and French have remained comparatively inactive on the western front. If this idea continues to gain ground, the consciousness of the Russian people, England and France will learn one of the warmest mornings that a peace has been arranged between Russia, Germany and France and that somebody else will do the fighting henceforth. Russia has been known to change her mind, and there is a slight warning to her allies that she might change it again."

Russia cannot honorably desert her allies who came to her rescue and with whom she has an agreement to stay in the same boat till all agree to peace or go down together. It is Russia's war.
She mobilized against Austria, and Germany, as Austria's ally, declared war on the czar. France went to the rescue of Russia as an ally, while Great Britain
went to war because of Germany's violation of Belgium's neutrality. Russia certainly could not leave France in the lurch, for France is assisting her in Russia's own fight.

Of course, if Russia is beaten she would have to let her allies know it so
all can quit, else it would be useless
for further sacrifice if Russia should waver or quit. Any sign of that would be a good time for President Wilson to tender his good offices to save the nations from each other.

When any one of the belligerents has
to quit because it can't fight any longer,
it will be all over with the rest—
either side to the fight.

Let us hope the signs for procuring peace are here, so the war can be brought to a close with honor for all European friends.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Mr. Franklin McNeill of this city, who follows the cotton market carefully, believes that cotton will sell fairly well in the fall. His faith has not been shaken much in the last few months, though other optimists have almost turned pessimists, and he is confident the staple will bring ten cents a pound. He does not expect that more than 12,000,000 bales will be grown,
and if the war should end pretty soon,
he thinks farmers would realize somesensibly on the crop. Farmers and other business men will hope that Mr. Mc-Neill's opinion will be justified. Even ten-cent cotton, despite reduced acreage and use of fertilizers, would help
the South a great deal, and North Carolina in particular. This State is producing more home supplies than ever,
and a good price for cotton would mean

TALKS ON THRIFT

THAT DAUGHTER OF YOURS
(American Bankers' Association)

"One is already poverty stricken
if his habits are not thrifty."— Theodore T. Munger.

She's a little bit of a girl now. Maybe she's just learning to creep a little and step a few words that nobody can understand but you and her mother. Perhaps she has just started to go to school.

At any rate, her wants are few and simple as yet. But she is learning to want more all the time. She wants to go to school and learn to read,
a high school, and perhaps a college education. If she's at all musically inclined she will want a piano and many building on.

If you are a wise, forward-looking father you will begin today to save for the increasing needs of your growing daughter. If you have more than one daughter, your "quiver is full of them,"
your responsibility is proportionately greater.

A Philadelphia school girl asked permission to quit school and go to work.
She said her father had been killed, her mother was ill, and her brother on half pay, so she had to help support
the family.

Might a series of misfortunes put your daughter into a similar position?
Or is your life insured, and are you able to quit school and go to work?
Bank to protect her from such a possibility?

This is frankly a sermon, but it is short, and, we trust, as sweet as its text.

T. D. MACGREGOR.

more prosperity.—Raleigh Times.

There are two items of the cotton statistics recently made public by the Census Bureau which ought to furnish food for thought for the Southern planters. The first is that the quantity of the staple going into domestic manufacture during the eleven months
ended last June was only 71,000 bales
less than the amount so consumed during the corresponding period of the preceding year, while the second is that the exports were but 75,288 bales less,
making a falling off, all told, of only a little over 800,000 bales. That the world-wide disturbance of business and economic conditions created by the war
is chiefly responsible for the low price
of cotton is not to be successfully questioned, but in the light of these figures quoted above, is there not substantial ground for believing that the staple would not have commanded very high prices even if nothing had occur-
ed to disturb the peace of the world
and to turn the world's commerce topsy-turvy? Eight hundred thousand bales is a comparatively small percentage of a 17,000,000-bale crop, and certainly a deficiency in consumption of that size would of itself have no very marked effect on the market. The result of proper consideration of the facts brought out by the government statistics and of the lessons which they so obviously teach could hardly fail to accelerate the movement, fortunately already under way, towards the institution of cotton acreage and increased planting of foodstuffs. Even with peace restored in Europe and the business of the world returned to a normal state, cotton acreage and production would still continue to offer the path of greatest safety and maximum profit
to Southern farmers both as individuals and as a class.—Norfolk Virginian.

PLAN PROPOSED FOR AMERICAN COTTON CARGOES.

To the Editor of The Star:

Now that the honor of our government and the rights of our citizens have been so thoroughly vindicated in the admirable firm, clear and convincing letter of Mr. Lansing to the German government, it is perhaps well enough for us to turn our attention to the dispute with the British government, which is naturally of very deep interest to the Southern states. Personally, I have no sympathy with any suggestion that implies that the violation of our rights by the murder of innocent women and children on the high seas in defiance of the plainest principles of law, is on a parity with the act of the British Government in refusing to permit cotton, known to be an ingredient of explosives, into Germany.

But the convenience, or so-called "necessity," of belligerents is not the measure of the rights of neutrals; and neither belligerents have a right to violate the principles of international law
established before the outbreak of war.
There can be no doubt that Great Britain
would be strictly within its rights
to declare cotton contraband, but it has not done so; and therefore, its right to seize and condemn cotton must be treated under the actual conditions that exist.

No reasonable man can blame the Allies for endeavoring to prevent Germany from getting the raw material so essential to her war effort, but they must exercise this prevention within the principles of law.

I was very much interested in the argument of Sir R. D. Finlay, late Attorney General of Great Britain, who is appearing for the owners of the cotton cargoes now on trial in the Prize Court, and it seems to me that he has offered a solution of the matter, which,
if adopted, ought to be satisfactory to our Southern cotton planters. I enclose you a brief statement of the argument, with the request that you publish the same as a suggestion looking toward the solution of the problem. Yours truly,

GEORGE ROUNTREE.

London—Sir Robert Finlay argued in the British prize court in the cases of American cargoes that had been seized at sea, contending that cargoes could be confiscated by the government only in the event where it was proved that it was intended for the enemy by way of continuous service. He said:
"Such a plan, it seems to me, must combine the declaration of cotton as contraband with a clear and generous scheme of compensation."
"What, therefore, is here suggested,
is that the government should:
"First, put itself right with American legal and official opinion, by placing cotton on the contraband list.
"Second, purchase from Southern cotton exchanges the amount of cotton that would normally have gone to the central empire."

"This would involve an outlay of some $150,000,000. If we bought up, at the same time and on the same premium basis, exports of American cotton to Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, etc., the total cost would be $250,000,000."

PREPARING FOR THE ENCAMPMENT AT FORT

Wilmington Light Infantry Conducting Weekly Drills.

Only One More Week Remains in Which to Complete Preparations for Annual Training School.

The boys of the Wilmington Light Infantry are now busy preparing for the annual encampment of the Coast Guard Artillery corps, at Fort Caswell which begins on Monday, August 2, and will continue for ten days. Capt. E. P. Bailey, the popular commanding officer of the local company, hopes to have practically every member of the company take part in the maneuvers and the drills at the fort. Some of the business men of the city, have hesitated about allowing employees to take ten days off for the encampment but for the most part there has been a loyal spirit of co-operation evident on every hand.

The members of the company have been for some time taking weekly artillery training drills and engaging in other practices. They expect to carry off the honors this year and will make every endeavor to this end.

There will be a number of new features in connection with the encampment this year. The analysis board which has heretofore been composed of regular army officers will consist this year of militia officers. It is of interest to know that Lieut. J. B. Lynch, of Wilmington, is a member of the board. The other members of the board are Major E. D. Kuykendall, of Greensboro, and Capt. L. A. Dodamead, of Hendersonville. This board will have charge of collecting all data regarding the firing of the big guns at the fort by the different companies at the encampment which will be placed on record for future reference.

While it takes only two and half minutes to fire the three shots that each company is allowed, this represents but a small part of the work to be done. Each company is required to blend its own powder for making the shots. The different ingredients come to the fort in hermetically sealed bags and this in turn is placed in a sealed can. The powder is taken out in a cool place and a selected number from the company does the mixing, each being in his stocking feet and wooden paddle being used in order to avoid danger from explosion.

It is of interest to know that it takes 33 pounds of powder to fire a projectile from an eight inch gun—the kind the W. L. I. uses—and the projectile weighs 314 pounds. The guns have a range of about eight miles.

The companies to take part in the encampment are: Hospital corps detachment from Rutherford, the Fifth from Charlotte, the First from Raleigh, the Second from Wilmington, the Sixth from Hendersonville, the Fourth from Salisbury, and the Third from Greensboro. All of these companies, with the exception of Charlotte and Wilmington will go direct to the fort in a special train while Charlotte will join the W. L. I. here and go down on the steamer Wilmington.

FUNERAL OF MR. LAMB.

Beloved Citizens of Wallace Led to Rest Yesterday Morning.

The funeral of Mr. John E. Lamb, whose death occurred at his home at Wallace, Friday morning after a lingering illness of several months, was held from the Presbyterian church at that place, yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock and was conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. P. M. Currie. The interment was in Rockfish cemetery. The pall-bearers were Messrs. L. W. Moore, of Wilmington; J. L. Boney, W. P. Murphy, R. V. Wells, W. M. Carr and D. C. Bryant, of Wallace. The burial was with Odd Fellows honors.

Mr. Lamb had been a member of the Odd Fellows for many years and always took a great interest in this organization. He was a faithful and consistent member of the Presbyterian church and at the time of his death was a ruling elder. He was 63 years old.

He is survived by his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Lou Williams; one son, Mr. Jno. L. Lamb, and three daughters, Mrs. J. T. Barden and Mrs. J. N. Wells, of Wilmington, and Mrs. J. N. Southernland, of Kenansville. He is also survived by two brothers, Messrs. R. G. Lamb, of Washington, D. C., and H. N. Lamb, of Wallace, and one sister, Mrs. T. J. Southernland, of Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. Lamb was greatly beloved and there was a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives present at the funeral. The floral offerings were profuse, the grave being covered with the designs.

Health Officers Mistaken.

It was thought by the health officers that a grave had been made at the corner of 11th and Dock streets this week, but after investigation with spades and shovels, the bottom of the original hole that had been made and brought about the suspicion contained nothing that appeared to have been placed there to be hidden. It is surmised that the digger was in search of a treasure that he thought had been hidden there. Some may have their ideas as to who did the digging, but no positive evidence to prove who did it, nor to prove or tell whether the effort was successful or not.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following deeds were filed for record yesterday: New Hanover Transit Company to Thomas P. Johnson, of Salisbury, for $100, and other consideration, nine lots in block 44 at Carolina Beach; Paul Chase to George M. Rogers and wife, for $250, a lot at Seagate, 30 by 70 feet in size; Suburban Land Company to Paul Chase, for $250, lot of irregular size at Seagate; Abraham Dugan and wife and Jacob Dugan, to J. W. Allen and wife, for $100 and other considerations, lot on west side of Eighth street, 99 feet south of Dawson, 32 by 165 feet in size.

Before Justice Harris.

Justice Harris gave a hearing yesterday to Edward Pearce, colored, and three other negro boys, for an assault on Joe Nixon, colored. Pearce was tried for assault with deadly weapon and sent to the Recorder, while the other three were tried for a simple assault and taxed with the costs. Also Addie Hastings, colored, was taken on a peace warrant sworn out by Gabrielle Ward, colored, and put on good behavior for six months.

REQUESTS CITIZENS TO AID MANY RECEIVE ASSISTANCE

Chairman Bonitz, of Entertainment Committee, Addresses Letter to Residents of Beach.

Chairman H. E. Bonitz, of the special entertainment committee of Wrightsville Beach, has sent a letter to all the residents at the resort asking for their co-operation in making the Feast of Lanterns to be given on August 6th a big success. There has been much interest taken in the arrangements being made for the event and Mr. Bonitz stated yesterday that it was not improbable that it will be made a two-day affair. The New Hanover Concert Band has been secured to lead the big parade which will take place on the evening of August 5th. Following is a copy of the letter which Chairman Bonitz sent out yesterday:

"Kind Friend—The 'Feast of Lanterns' is assured. Your committee is determined to make this occasion one worth while. The evening for the occasion is Friday, August 6th.

"Your assistance and co-operation with the committee is now needed to make the 'Feast of Lanterns' a beautiful and festive occasion. We believe that you will give us your valuable co-operation and help us with some financial assistance to make the 'Feast of Lanterns' the success that you and all of us desire.

"We want you to decorate your lawn or cottage artistically with Japanese lanterns. If every cottage on Wrightsville Beach is thus decorated, what a beautiful sight we will have! Should a few cottages be undecorated, it may probably mar the beauty of the evening.

"Your committee has arranged so that you can purchase your lanterns at the small cost of 10 cents each, including the candles; one dollar will buy ten lanterns. These artistically arranged may win for you one of the gold prizes. Twenty lanterns arranged with taste will make most any of our cottages attractive. A representative of the committee will call on you and show you samples of lanterns and secure your order.

"We will have an expense of about $300 for advertising, a band of music and fire protection. Won't you contribute a small amount toward this expense? Some funds are necessary to provide for the payment of incidental expenses. In return for your financial assistance, we will send laborers to your cottage to assist in placing wires for the stringing of lanterns.

"Let us pull together and make this Wrightsville Beach occasion a joyous one. Make the 'Feast of Lanterns' a big event, and thus give the many guests and visitors who will probably honor us with their presence on this occasion a splendid evening, full of enjoyment, such as only we Wilmingtonians are noted for giving.

"Please let me hear from you by return of this enclosed postal.

"Yours to serve for a successful occasion."

H. E. BONITZ.

Chairman of Committee.

MR. PAUL COMES RETURNS.

Will Have Charge of Bill Posting Business at Wilmington.

That Wilmington is one of the best cities to be found anywhere is the opinion of Mr. Paul M. Comes, who has returned to take charge of the extensive bill posting business conducted by Mrs. Schloss in Wilmington, Charlotte, Hamlet and Monroe. Mr. and Mrs. Comes are now staying at the Hotel Wilmington annex, corner Third and Walnut streets. Their many friends in Wilmington will be glad to welcome them back after an absence of several months.

LIEUT. MATHESON COMING.

Transferred from Philippines to Wilmington District Engineering.

Lieut. John R. Matheson, who has been transferred to the Wilmington office of the United States engineering from recent service in the Philippine Islands, according to a notice received by Major Stickle yesterday, Lieutenant Matheson has been stationed in the Philippines for two years and on his return to the United States police was sent to report for duty at the Wilmington office under the immediate order of the Chief Engineer.

This being the season for his vacation, he will be here for some weeks yet. It is rumored that he will be placed in charge of the locks and dams on the upper Cape Fear, with headquarters at Brown's Landing, filling the position recently vacated by Capt. C. S. Ridley, who succeeds Major Stickle as Chief Engineer tomorrow. Major Stickle leaves tomorrow evening for Baltimore to take up his duties there.

WOOLWORTH OPENING.

Superintendent J. B. May Here—R. C. Jones is Manager.

District Superintendent J. B. May, of Wilkesboro, Pa., of the Woolworth Company, was here yesterday to assist Manager R. C. Jones, who has just come down from the Woolworth store in Norfolk to take charge of the Wilmington store. In holding a formal opening and waiting on the rush of the crowd that went there to get bargains.

Quite a large crowd gathered in and near the Woolworth store and reports were made to the police that a few thefts were detected. James Hill and Leroy Cack, both colored boys, were arrested and found with a few articles on them. They will have a hearing before the Recorder tomorrow. Wilmington is welcoming the new bargain store to town and it was thronged yesterday until late last night with a tremendous crowd of people.

May Arrive Tomorrow.

Sheriff Cowan and Deputy Sheriff Reynolds are expected to arrive in Wilmington tomorrow from San Antonio, Texas, with Plummer Gilbert, the young white man, wanted here in connection with a charge of larceny against several persons. Gilbert was brought back here from Knoxville, Tenn., and after giving bond in the sum of $400 left the city and it was declared forfeited. Gilbert was employed for a time with the National Detective Agency, of Knoxville, Tenn., and it was through the efforts of Mr. S. L. Bratton, head of this agency, that he was located in San Antonio. Mr. Bratton is well known in Wilmington, having been employed here about three years ago in running down some burglary cases, and is a man of the strictest integrity.

Excellent Work Being Done by Travelers' Aid at Union Station in Wilmington—Report.

Mrs. E. M. Gregg, chairman of the social service committee of Sorosis, reports that much good is being done by the Travelers' Aid at the union station. There are two workers, alternately dividing the day and night duty, so that every incoming and outgoing train is met by one of them. This work is supported by contributions from many different organizations and individuals. The community at large is much interested in this work and its development.

Those aiding in this work would be fully satisfied that their money is well invested, if they knew half of the gratitude expressed by the traveling public to these faithful workers, especially the women and girls who come alone to Wilmington. Seldom does a night pass without some one remaining in the station until morning, who would otherwise have been obliged to seek the kind protective presence of one of these Travelers' Aid workers. Quite often passengers come in who are ill or otherwise afflicted and they receive every kindness and assistance.

The workers at the station are untiring in their efforts and go far beyond their mere duty. In performing many little kindnesses, it is against the rules of the Society for these workers to accept any payment for their services, other than the salary paid them, they only receive letters of thanks expressing gratitude for their assistance. Recently two young girls, who came to the city, had been much annoyed by the persistent attentions of two men who followed them from the train into the station. The girls seemed not to know how to get rid of them and then one of the workers at the station, ever on the alert, saw the situation and going up to the girls told them that she was there to render them any assistance she could. This is only one of many instances of the same nature. Wilmington people feel that the city is greatly blessed in having such protection at the union station.

OCTOBER WEATHER NOW

Wilmington Had Maximum Yesterday of 74—No Rain.

Typical October weather in Wilmington yesterday and last night erased all thoughts of the oppressive heat of last week and blankets were in much demand in the summer homes by the beach. The maximum yesterday was 79 degrees while the minimum registered was 66 degrees. At 8 o'clock last night the temperature was 48 degrees which would have made a fire not uncomfortable.

There was a forecast of a moderate disturbance along the Middle and North Atlantic coast, but it was not expected to amount to anything more than a strong gale in some sections. However, there were some anxious ones who were afraid that it would blow up a storm.

There might be an electric storm and a few peals of thunder but even that seemed improbable last night when a typical harvest moon shined with crystalline brightness.

MEETING OF MANAGERS.

Mr. John Shinsberger Attends Western Union Conference in Norfolk.

Mr. John Shinsberger, the popular manager of the local office of the Western Union Telegraph Company, returned yesterday from Norfolk, Va., where on Friday he attended a meeting of the managers of the offices in North and South Carolina. This conference was in the nature of a get-together and get-acquainted meeting and was presided over by Mr. J. C. Worthen, of Atlanta, Ga., the general manager of the Southern States.

Heretofore Mr. J. S. Calvert has been the manager in charge of the districts embracing North Carolina and Virginia, but it has been decided to create a new district which shall embrace North and South Carolina. Mr. P. R. Veal has been named superintendent of this district and will have his headquarters in Charlotte.

MR. E. E. SHOOTER DEAD.

Had Intelligence Received by His Son, Mr. Arthur Shooter, Last Night.

Many Wilmington friends of Mr. Arthur E. Shooter, a popular young telegrapher in the W. U. office in this city, will sympathize with him deeply in the death of his father, Mr. E. E. Shooter, which occurred last night at his home in Lumberton, N. C., after a brief illness. Mr. Shooter received a telegram last night conveying to him the sad intelligence and he will leave for the early morning train today for Lumberton to be with the family and to attend the funeral. A dispatch to The Star from its Lumberton correspondent early last night stated that Mr. Shooter suffered a stroke of paralysis at 7:30 P. M., which affected one side of his body and rendered him speechless, but did not state that he had died.

DIES IN WASHINGTON.

Remains of Miss Eula Tolar Will Be Brought to Wilmington Today.

The remains of Miss Eula Williams Tolar, whose death occurred at the home of her mother, Mrs. John Williams, in Washington, D. C., yesterday, will be brought to Wilmington this morning, arriving here on the 9:40 train from the North. The interment will be made in Oakdale cemetery. There will be a short funeral service at the grave, conducted by Rev. Andrew J. Howell. Miss Tolar was a young woman who was well known to many people in Wilmington, having lived here with her mother until some five or six years ago.

VESSEL WAS REPAIRED HERE

Steamer Vigilant Put in Seagoing Condition Here—Cargo of 6,000 Bales of Cotton.

That Wilmington possesses the facilities for putting trans-Atlantic steamers in sea-going condition with promptness and dispatch was demonstrated the past week when the American steamer Vigilant, which sailed yesterday afternoon with cargo of 6,000 bales of cotton from Alexander Sprunt & Son for Havre, France, via Savannah, Ga., was put in shape by the Wilmington Iron Works to stand the rigid government inspection which is made annually of all American vessels.

The home port of the Vigilant is Savannah, but as Messrs. Rice and Cotton, government inspectors, whose headquarters are in Charleston, were in Wilmington, it was more convenient for them to make the annual inspection here than at Savannah and it was decided to have the repairs made here. In three days' time the vessel was in sea-going shape, 40 men having been engaged in making repairs. In fact, the vessel was put in shape 24 hours sooner than the specified time in the contract.

The Vigilant will complete her loading at Savannah, taking on about 2,000 additional bales of cotton and other miscellaneous cargo. She will then sail direct to Havre, France.

It is of interest to know that this steamer was in Havre when the City of Savannah was there the latter part of May and several Wilmington young men who had gone as passengers, went aboard while she was anchored alongside the City of Savannah.

ELOQUENT NEGRO SPEAKER

TO MAKE ADDRESS HERE.

Dr. Sutton D. Griggs, of Memphis, to Speak at Academy of Music.

A negro speaker, Dr. Sutton D. Griggs, of Memphis, Tenn., reputed to be the foremost orator of his race, is in Wilmington in the interest of a National theological seminary for the colored race. The Southern Baptist Convention has voted $50,000 to this movement. Today Dr. Griggs will speak at Shiloh Baptist church, colored, corner Walnut and MacRae streets, and tomorrow night he will deliver an address to the public in general at the Academy of Music.

Speaking of an address which he delivered recently before the Southern Baptist Convention, the Houston Chronicle said: "Sutton D. Griggs, of Tennessee, made a talk that made a profound impression and was the only speaker of the day who won any applause."

Two weeks ago he spoke in Raleigh in the city auditorium and the Raleigh Times said of his address, "An address, if heard by both races throughout the South, will do untold good in the matter of cementing the pleasant relationship existing between the white and the colored people, was delivered to a large audience last night at the city auditorium by Dr. Sutton D. Griggs, of Memphis, Tenn. Dr. Griggs has a strong, pleasing voice which serves him well in his address. He is a speaker who does not waste his words, but speaks with the force of eloquence, as he often does. He has an abundant sense of humor, and time after time, literally convulsed the audience with laughter. White people laughing unreservedly, yet not a joke was told that did not drive home an important point in the address. In addition to being an orator, the speaker showed himself to be a philosopher, bringing out many important things not heretofore discussed."

The address in Raleigh was the first of a series of addresses to be delivered throughout the State by Dr. Griggs, and the white people who are co-operating with him have expressed themselves as being very interested in the speaker. It is the hope of the people of each section shall hear him who has been termed the negro apostle of a new race relationship.

MOTORCYCLIST INJURED.

Mr. Geo. S. Truelove Lost Control of Machine, Dashed into Tree.

Mr. George S. Truelove, a nephew of Mr. H. E. Truelove, No. 819 Chestnut street, is in the James Walker Memorial Hospital, suffering with concussion and with a badly contused leg and right shoulder as the result of a fall into a tree early last evening at Ninth and Market streets while out taking a ride on his motorcycle. Mr. Truelove was about to turn a corner there when in some way he lost control of the machine and it dashed into one of the number of trees along the sidewalk and on the plaza in the middle of the street on that thoroughfare.

He was rendered unconscious for some time but a little later his uncle, Mr. H. E. Truelove, who was driving and took him in an automobile to the hospital where it was stated later that it would perhaps be this morning before he was able to get on his feet. The extent of the young man's injuries could be ascertained. He had partially regained consciousness and was resting as easily as could be expected.

FUNERAL OF MR. KING.

Last Honors Paid to Much Loved and Beloved Young Man.

The funeral of Mr. Eric Clyde King, whose death occurred Friday morning at the James Walker Memorial Hospital after a lingering illness, was conducted yesterday morning at 10 o'clock from the residence, No. 205 Campbell street, by Rev. W. M. Craig, pastor of the First Baptist church. A large gathering of devoted friends came to pay their last respects. Burial was made in the Oakdale cemetery.

The pall-bearers were: Honorary, Waldo Moore, J. R. Sheehan and Jennings Woolcott, active; Cortland McEachern, George T. Fowler, Paul R. Fowler, Carlisle Shepard, Robert Shakenburg and Willie Kelly.

Satanet Goes to Court.

The new "drink with a wink" which has been extensively advertised over the country with a flaring picture of a winkin' devil, called Satanet, now seems destined to be the subject of a court litigation. Logan Mallard, a Baltimore chemist, who claims that the manufacturers have not paid what they promised for the formula for the drink, has filed an injunction for the further sale of Satanet. Paul Garrett, Garrett & Co. Inc., of Norfolk, are the manufacturers and they have planned to start a branch in Wilmington, which branch bottling works is to open in the very near future.

South Carolinians' Excursion.

The Atlantic Coast Line will run an excursion from Bennettsville, Darlington and intermediate points to this city on August 19. The train will arrive here at 12:30 p. m. and leave on return at 9 p. m. It is thought that a number of people will take this day off and get a dip in the ocean.

Two Interesting Games of Baseball League at Hilton Park.

The pennant race of the Independent League tightened yesterday when the Immanuel boys captured the first game from Delgado, again throwing the Tigers in the first place. Delgado seemed to be in bad luck. Horne, the pitcher, was unable to stop the batting of the Immanuel. The stick work of Delgado was a triple, double and one. Delgado and the pitching of Yates and the flailing of Gerdes for the Immanuel team were the features of the game. The Immanuel team runs wild. Delgado only got two. The batteries were: Immanuel, Yates and H. Gerdes; Delgado, Horne, Carter and O'Brien.

There was a light crowd at the Recorder's court yesterday. Two of the most important cases continued, one called and failed and another defendant was found not guilty. Jimmy Cherry, alias James Hamilton, colored, who had been in jail since last November despite the police search, was apprehended Friday and given a hearing on charge of larceny by trick, and a forcible trespass. His cases were continued until next Tuesday and Hamilton is in jail in default of bond.

Leonard Sterne, white, who was serving a 12 month sentence on the county farm for blackmailing and had escaped soon after his sentence began, was given a hearing and his case was continued. Tomorrow, Jailer J. M. Branch recently brought Sterne back from Norfolk, where the young man had been working since he made his escape.

Young is wanted in Wilmington on a similar charge and Chief of Police Shephard wished to know if it was desired to send after the negro. He said that the negro is now in the hospital being treated for a wound which he received from the officer who went to arrest him. Chief of Police Shephard has not yet decided whether or not he will send for the negro or will allow him to remain in the custody of the Gibsonville authorities.

TRADE AT HOME

Give the Local Merchant the benefit of your trade, and by so doing keep money at home.

No community can prosper by foreign buying. The secret of community prosperity is to sell more to the outsider than the outsider sells to us, thus making the trade balance run in our favor.

This policy brings in more wealth than goes out, and constantly adds to local resources. It makes better business, higher wages, and a more prosperous community.

We are interested in any movement that looks to local improvement, and recommend the Buy at Home Policy for the general good.

DELIGHTFUL HOUSE PARTY

GIVEN BY MISS WRIGHT

Boardman, July 24.—During the past two weeks, the Misses Helen and Martha Wright have been entertaining a delightful house party at their home on Boardman, in honor of three of their St. Mary school friends, Miss Helene Northcott, of Winston, Miss Janie Roland, of Louisville, Miss Annie Belle Kline, of Louisville.

Several days were spent in a motor trip to Lake Waccamaw, where the party was enjoyably entertained at the beautiful club house there. The variety of amusements, coupled with the many kindnesses of several members of the club, brought forth many remarks of appreciation for this beautiful spot of Eastern Carolina. The fishing trip, with Dr. H. F. Munt as guide, was especially enjoyed.

Under the guidance of Mr. E. S. Wright, a special train carried the party into the logging woods of the Butters Lumber Company and an afternoon was spent in watching the aerial skidders in operation and in eating logging camp dainties.

The two weeks of pleasure culminated in a lawn party, given in the garden surrounding the Wright home. The out-of-town guests included: Mr. Walter Powell, Mr. Farrier Powell, Mr. Josiah Maulsby, Mr. J. Elbert Thompson, all of Whiteville, N. C., and Mr. John O'Gorman, of New York City.

The Misses Wright left yesterday for Winston, where they will visit Miss Helene Northcott.

On account of the midsummer athletic meet next Saturday afternoon the exhibition will have to be postponed until the following Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Bankhead and two daughters, Mr. E. C. The afternoon concert begins at 4 o'clock and the evening programme begins at 8:15 o'clock upon the arrival of the car from town at 8 o'clock. The evening concert will be featured by a "request" feature, "Traumerel" (Schumann) by Don Richardson and string quintette. Yesterday's Charlotte Observer: "Miss Margaret Treloar left yesterday for Wrightsville Beach to spend the remainder of the summer. Miss Treloar has just returned from a two months' stay at Tryon. Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Preston and little daughter, Anna Jackson and Julia Courtney Preston, have returned home after a two weeks' stay at Wrightsville Beach."

In spite of the cool weather last evening there was quite a large crowd at Lumina to enjoy the week-end dance. One of the unannounced features was the exhibition dancing by Miss Aline Felton and Mr. Eugene Hayne, both of Atlanta. They gave many variations of the fox trot and so pleased were the spectators that they were literally applauded while dancing and at the conclusion of the exhibition were forced to give another which was a beautiful rendition of the one-step. The Texas Quartette which has pleased the crowds at this pavilion the past week, closed its engagement last night. These young men sing with fine ability and there are many who hope they may be secured again for another engagement.

Chords and Discords

The World Moves.
"It is indeed wonderful what progress has been made in the last hundred years in medical science," said a well known Wilmington physician, the other day. "This morning I had a little leisure time and I picked up a book on medicine which was published in 1845. In this book was an exhaustive treatise on the subject of malaria. And do you know that there wasn't a single statement on this disease that has not been exploded by modern science?"
"After treating of the causes of the disease—none of which would be credited now—directions were given for its treatment—and these methods have also been discarded. The discussion of other diseases was just as antiquated. This book is of little interest now except as a concrete evidence of how little reputable physicians knew of the treatment of certain diseases 70 years ago."
"While we pride ourselves so much on our knowledge of things at the present time, I do not doubt that 70 years from now people will regard us as much of old fogies as we do those who lived 70 years ago. The world do move."

They Meet on the Square.
One of Wilmington's most democratic institutions are her public wells. Scattered all over the city are deep wells which have been sunk by the city to furnish drinking water for the people. For Wilmington occupies the anomalous position of having a modern up-to-date water system and yet competes with this system by putting down deep wells all over the town to furnish her citizens with drinking water. Gallon glass bottles, the kind perhaps that used to be most popular for containing a different kind of beverage, are used mostly for getting the drinking water.
Hawthorne once wrote a classic sketch of the town pump. If he had lived in Wilmington he would have written not about the town pump but about the wells. His theme would have been the same but it would have been perhaps more interesting for in a city the size of Wilmington are to be seen many interesting people.
If the pumps could speak they would have many interesting stories to tell. They would tell about the young and the old, the rich and the poor, the happy and the sorrowful, the good and the bad, the unchanging story of humanity itself.
They meet upon the square, upon the common level, and all with a common purpose. The water is free for all. Its purity is symbolic of the fact that the best things of life can be had by all for the asking. It is without price. The simile has been used so often in sermons and in stories that it is not necessary to repeat it.
Wilmington pumps teach a valuable lesson every day in the year. They proclaim the democracy of the people who live here.

The Vacation Season.
While so much is being said about vacations and so many people are taking a season of rest, something ought to be said about the men and the women who will not be able to leave their daily cares for a season. Their number is greater than those who will be able to take a vacation, but little will be said about them for the story of the man who stays at home, attends to his daily toil and has little leisure is uninteresting. We do not care for it because it is so deadly monotonous.

"Where will you spend the summer?" asked a Wilmington man of a friend the other day.
"I shall spend it in Wilmington," was the reply. "It is not altogether of my choosing but necessity demands that I stay at home and I shall try to get as much pleasure out of it as I would if I could seek rest in some mountain retreat or down by the seashore."
And so those who have not the opportunity of getting a vacation perhaps enjoy life as much as those who do. For after all, life is not dependent upon vacations. They reap most who put most into life. Those who cannot go away for a rest will have the satisfaction of knowing that they are being faithful to the task assigned them.

What Money Does.
When a Wilmington man said the other day that money answereth all things his statement was challenged by a friend who declared in emphatic terms that it did not.
"Well, the Bible says that it does and I consider that pretty good authority, don't you?" the first remarked dryly.
"The Bible says no such thing and you will not find any statement like that in the scriptures," declared the second.
"I know that the Bible does say so and while I cannot now point you to the passage where I go home I will find it," was the reply.
It took him some time to find it but finally the passage was located. In the 19th verse of the Fifth chapter of Ecclesiastes the statement is made that "A feast is made for laughter, and wine maketh glad the life; and money answereth all things."
There is something said in the Bible also about the d—l quoting scripture to suit his own purpose. Perhaps the interpretation placed upon this passage by the Wilmington man may not be according to accepted standards. The point to this story is not to interpret this scripture but to show that there are many things in the Bible the majority of people know nothing about. Most men will deny that the Bible states that money answereth all things but it is there just the same.

She Wanted to Help.
"I understand you are crowded and are having some difficulty in finding room for your guests," said a lady at one of the summer hotels at the beach the other day. "And I want to say that I can let you have one of the rooms occupied by my family. If you will put an additional bed in one of the other rooms."
The clerk to whom she made the statement thought she was going to make some complaint and the frown on his face quickly changed to one of real happiness when he found she had come not to grumble but to render assistance she could.

He was Profuse in his Expressions of Appreciation of her Thoughtfulness and assured her he would be glad to accept her offer, if it became necessary.

In the Mountain Country.
"The mountains were dressed in their freshest colors, slightly veiled in soft white mist like chiffon draperies," writes a friend who is finding rest amidst rugged scenes of the Blue Ridge mountains. "We walked to a lovely spot where a buoyant waterfall tumbled into a deep hole with walls of moss, bushes and huge boulders. We sat there awhile and then explored an old cave full of interesting rock formations and such cavy things with a blue sulphur spring bubbling up away back in a dark corner."
There is more of the description but this is sufficient to bring a breath of real life to tired mortals who must toil on in spite of the heat, sunshine and the rain. No less an important person than President Roosevelt has declared that at times he must find rest for his turbulent soul by reading of the mountains and their grandeur while at other times he likes to read of the sea and its unceasing turmoil.
Better still, of course, would it be to visit the seashore or the mountains but if the opportunity does not present itself to take such trips there is some consolation in knowing that others can tell the story and perhaps lend to it an interpretation and a meaning that one might fail to get by visiting the scenes in person.

A Sense of Humor.
Some men are born with a sense of humor, others achieve it while perhaps occasionally there are those who acquire it by association. But in general, if you don't have it, you can't acquire it. Not to take things too seriously is the saving part of life provided one can meet the hard tasks and solve them.
"Don't take yourself too seriously," is the fifth rule for living a happy life. The first four do not count anyway and need not be mentioned.
"When I read such tender, sentimental, tearful, blooming, comforted before, senseless stuff as is paraded before the gaze of thoughtful readers by your columnist," writes an irritated reader, "I am convinced that after all there are some things worse than being imprisoned in a State penitentiary for life. Is there anyway to stop it?"
It seems that both the columnist and this tired reader need a sense of humor.

The Need of Leisure.
It is refreshing to find in one of the popular weeklies a plea for leisure, not leisure merely for resting but in order to absorb some of the good things of life that cannot come to those burdened with cares and work. While we sing of the open fields and their attractiveness, of the sea with its never ending ebb and flow, of the mountains with their rugged peaks, there must be some time in which to enjoy them.
The Gospel of work has been preached until most of us are ready to believe that nothing else is worth much and yet after all the greater need for many people is time in which to enjoy the good things that nature has provided.
"Good philosophical stuff," remarked our friend when we read to him this effusion. Perhaps he meant to be sarcastic, or he may have thought that philosophy is the art of being everlastingly serious. Anyway, he didn't take time to explain."

TYPHOID FEVER IS PREVENTABLE

Four hundred thousand persons incapacitated, and thirty thousand lives lost—this is the heavy toll exacted in the United States each year by the scourge of typhoid fever. And typhoid fever is a preventable disease!

A recent bulletin of the United States public health service entitled "Typhoid Fever—Its Causation and Prevention," states that within the past ten years few of our communities having as many as two thousand persons have remained free from this disease for any period of twelve consecutive months. In recent times the rate of its prevalence for the United States as a whole has been from two to five times as high as in some of the countries of Europe. In these European countries the typhoid rate was formerly higher than the present figures for the United States. Their great reductions in the ravages of the disease have been brought about by improvements in sanitary conditions.

In many American cities there has occurred within the last twenty years a considerable reduction of typhoid fever. Due in a large part to improved sanitary conditions in the cities, the typhoid rate for some entire states has shown a material decrease. For the country as a whole, according to available figures, the rate has been reduced about 50 per cent. in the past 40 years. But the present rate is about the same as that which prevailed in some of the other advanced nations of the world 30 years ago. In other words the United States is a generation behind the times, in respect to the reduction of its typhoid rate.

Practical and efficient measures for the prevention of typhoid fever are definitely known, but the efforts to get the people of the average self-governing community to carry out these measures to a reasonable extent are often-times decidedly experimental in character. In many instances the cost of modern sanitary improvements has been an obstacle in the way of typhoid prevention. It is often difficult to convince the governing authorities that money expended in the protection of the public health yields large dividends.

In rural communities and small municipalities another factor—the installation and co-operation of the individual property owner—enters into the problem. Here every home must have its own method of sewage disposal, and in most cases its own water supply. The public health service bulletin above referred to deals in a comprehensive way with the construction of wells and outhouses.

In recent years a specific method for increasing individual resistance to typhoid germs has been employed. This is known as anti-typhoid inoculation or "vaccination." This method has been used extensively in military organizations of the United States, and from the results obtained it appears that inoculated persons are, upon equal exposure to typhoid infection, less than one-fourth as likely to develop the disease as those who have not been inoculated and who have previously had the disease. The average duration of protection given by inoculation has not been determined, but is supposed to be about two years.

It is pointed out, however, that the protection given by anti-typhoid inoculation is relative, not absolute, and that such inoculation is not to be regarded as a substitute for sanitation.

When Jess Willard, standing in the rays of a Cuban sun, swung his brawny right arm in the general direction of Jack Johnson's jaw a fortune of $700,000 bid fair to be showered at the feet of the new world's champion within a year. This is the estimate placed on the earning capacity of Willard by Tom Jones, his manager.

The good fortune of the successful white hope paved the way for an interesting comparison of anatomical remuneration. Which brings to its owner the greater monetary reward—the sturdy arm of a pugilist, the sprightly foot of a dancer, the delicate throat of a singer, the flexible hand of a pianist?

NOW TO FIGURE IT OUT.

For purposes of comparison let us take Willard, whose arm recently hoisted him to the pinnacle of fame; the Castles, whose feet have whirled them into a fortune; Caruso, whose tenor voice threatens his bank roll with obesity; Paderewski, whose toying with the ivory keys is accompanied by the jingle of silver dollars.

Jack Curley estimates that the new champion will make half a million dollars from now until the first of the year, and that during the first year of his championship $700,000 will have poured into his coffers. This revenue will be derived from his proceeds in the fight, his salary on the vaudeville stage, boxing exhibitions, royalties from moving pictures and contributions to newspapers and magazines.

MUST COMPARE ACTUAL EARNINGS.

Willard is now said to be drawing $2,500 a week salary as a vaudeville headliner. He has bookings that will keep him on the stage until the middle of summer. He will resume his engagements in the fall. Willard had not been in New York three days following his fight in Havana before he had signed a contract for $25,000 to give health and hygienic hints for readers of a publishing syndicate. For everything that is named for Jess Willard he will receive a royalty.

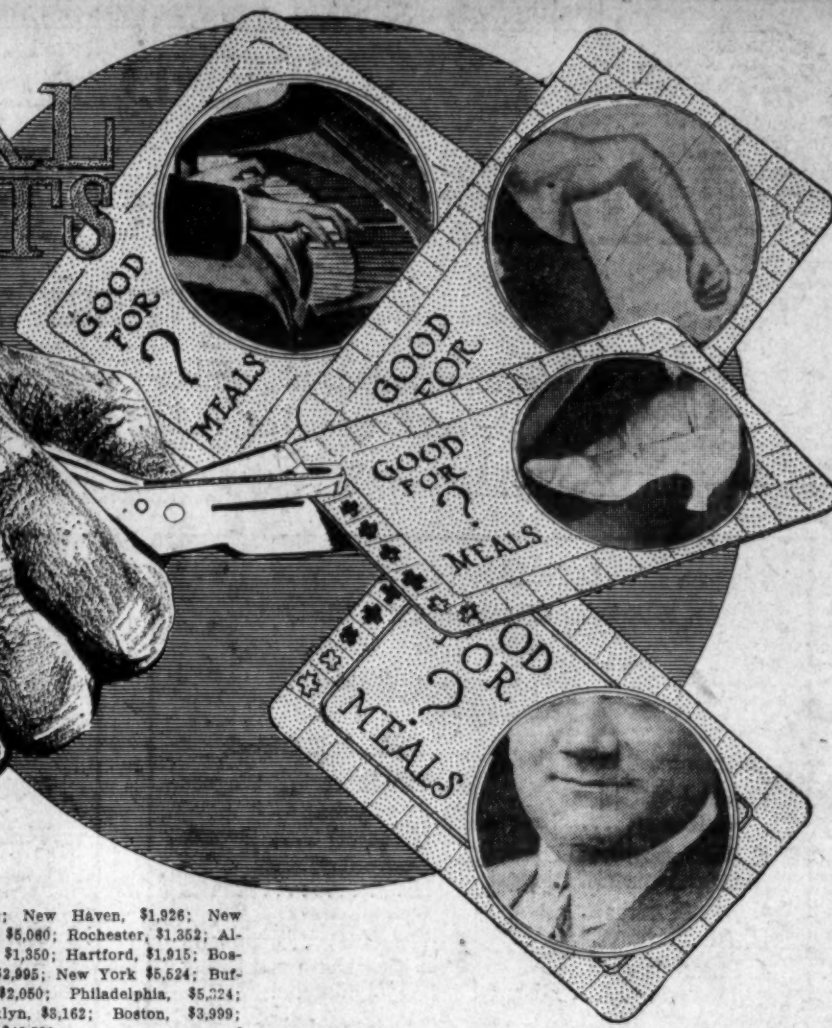

To compare Willard's probable earnings with the actual earnings of the Castles, Caruso and Paderewski, would not help us to arrive at a conclusion as to which garners the tied. Should the moving pictures be exhibited in America, and should he make $350,000 in all, each minute of the Havana fight netted the cowboy a little less than $4,480 a minute.

How does this compare with the earnings of the Castles?

An estimate of what these famous dancers made with their feet during the last twelve months hovers about the $250,000 mark. This includes their salary from "Watch Your Step" and their interest in "The Castles in the Air," a midnight show; royalties from phonographic records and dance music, and profits from their studio.

This also included a fortune they netted on a record tour of thirty days. On this tour they were backed by a guarantee of $1,000 a performance for two performances a day, or $2,000. They danced four dances of five minutes each at the two performances, or forty minutes a day in all. On the basis of $2,000 a day this meant that the Castles earned $50 every minute they performed.

Thus the feet of the Castles rank considerably less in the percentage column of anatomical fortune-bagging than does the sturdy right arm of Jess Willard. At the lowest estimate he made $1,250 more a minute in the fight at Havana—and maybe $4,440 a minute.

We are told that Enrico Caruso received from the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company of New York for vocal persuasions dispensed in the past season something like $100,000; also that his past yearly income for the same period from phonographic records equaled that amount. In other words, he collected $200,000.

IT MEANS $118 A MINUTE.

But his average daily income was mere "pin money" compared to what he will receive in Buenos Aires next May. He has signed a contract for ten performances at $7,000 a performance! This is the largest salary ever paid a singer.

Those of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company in a position to know say that the average length of time Caruso appears on the stage in each of his Italian roles is fifty-nine minutes. On the basis of $7,000 a performance the gifted tenor is capable of earning a little more than $118 for every minute he sings.

One will readily see that the whirling feet of the Castles are capable of earning only a little more than half that amount in the same period, and the muscular right arm of Jess Willard from seven to thirty-three times that amount.

PIANIST'S EARNING POWER.

For years Paderewski practiced and starved in Poland because he did not know how to capitalize his talents. One day he got hold of a shrewd impresario, or a shrewd impresario got hold of him, and he changed his talents into gold. Here are a few figures covering fourteen consecutive concerts on his second tour of America: Binghamton, $1,500; New York, $5,069; Boston,

$2,364; New Haven, $1,926; New York, $5,060; Rochester, $1,352; Albany, $1,350; Hartford, $1,915; Boston, $2,995; New York $5,524; Buffalo, $2,050; Philadelphia, $5,224; Brooklyn, $3,162; Boston, $3,999; total $43,590, or an average of $3,113.

The total number of concerts given during this second tour in twenty-six American cities was sixty-seven, and the receipts amounted to $180,000—a sum never before equaled by any instrumental performer. Of this amount about $150,000 was net.

MADE $228 A CONCERT.

Inasmuch as this was Paderewski's most successful tour we shall base what his hands are capable of earning on the results of this visit to America. Figuring that $150,000 of the $180,000 that poured into the box office was net, the great pianist averaged a little more than $2,238 a concert. On a basis of thirty-five minutes to a program this shows Paderewski capable of earning $63.97 a minute.

To summarize:

These figures would indicate that the arm is capable of earning the most money per minute. The throat, hand and feet follow in the order named. And if the estimate of Jack

Curley, Willard's manager, is correct, the new champion's aggregate earnings for the next year should far exceed those either of the Castles, Caruso or Paderewski.

An Interrupted Discourse.

Our friend the plutocrat is talking with us, when the newsboy offers him the latest edition.

"No," our friend is saying. "I do not think any man can find his happiness in the possession of money. As for me, I have ceased to pursue it. Often I think I should be far more contented had I simply gone through life with a sufficient income

Rather let us figure it this way: Willard fought Jack Johnson twenty-six rounds before putting over the smashing right to the jaw that brought back the title to the white race and the "bacon" to the Willard domicile. Each round lasted three minutes. Therefore, the entire battle lasted seventy-eight minutes, or the fraction of a minute less.

AT LEAST $1,800

A MINUTE.

Pictures of a white man restoring native honors to the Caucasian race go to make a big drawing card. Outside of the United States they will net the Kansas cowboy a bonanza of $100,000. If allowed exhibition in America the Willard banking account will be swelled an extra $250,000. These are the figures of Jack Curley and other well-known sporting authorities.

Therefore, $100,000 or $350,000 can be figured as the actual earnings of Willard in the fight proper. The amount of money he drew as his actual share of the fight is not worth considering in dealing with these big sums. It was little more than $3,000. On the basis of $100,000 Willard made nearly $1,300 each minute of the seventy-eight he bat-

During his most successful concert tour Paderewski, the pianist, made $68.97 every time he ran his fingers over the keyboard.

With the aid of her dancing husband Mrs. Vernon Castle received only $50 a minute—How unfortunate!

to assure me of comfort. There is a—Well, what do you think of that? That secondly newsboy has given me too little change out of that dime. Hey, there, stop him! Somebody grab the rascal!"

And he is running up the street, hot on the trail of the unprincipled wretch.

Labor Troubles.

"What was the cause of the fight between the members of the union that is out on strike?"

"Well, one crowd fixed up a dummy of the employer, stuffed it with paper, hung it to a telegraph pole and burned it."

"And the others objected to this proceeding?"

"Yes."

"An encouraging sign. When laboring men resent the offering of insults to their—"

"O, they didn't care so much about the employer. What they kicked about was that the other fellows didn't hire a member of the paper-hangers' union to hang the effigy."

Not That Time.

Mr. Titewadd, his face wreathed in smiles, drives out of the stable of the horsedealer, holding the reins over the team he has just purchased.

"There's the confoundest man for driving a bargain I ever saw," observes a hanger on.

"He isn't driving one now, just the same," grins the horsedealer.

We wish they would quit exposing things. It is getting so that nobody has any faith in canned goods or complexion.

When Jess Willard battled Johnson at Havana his big right arm pulled in from $1,300 to $4,400 for each one of the seventy-eight minutes the bout lasted.

Caruso's much famed throat suffers by comparison as his best record is only $118 per minute for the actual time of his services.

TOWNS ARE DESTROYED BY TURKS AND KURDS

Women and Children Killed or Carried Away.

Conditions in Kurdistan in Wake of Campaign Against Armenians—
Not a Person Remains in Bashkala.

Russo-Armenian Camp, Near Bashkala, Kurdistan, July 20.—For a perfect epitome of conditions in this region it is necessary to step only a few yards from Bashkala on the Chukh road to the hamlet of Heresan. There today the Associated Press correspondent found 60 Armenian men, all that are known to remain alive and free in a population of 500—not a single woman or child but what had been killed or carried away by the Turks and Kurds.

Half a dozen wells were crammed with the bodies of those who had not been carried away. Sherabeg, a Kurdish chief, began the ravages last fall, killing a score of men and carrying off thousands of head of cattle. Some 60 of the sturdiest of the survivors fled to a monastery about 15 miles away to procure arms and help, but they could not re-capture their village, and had to flee for their lives, leaving the remaining population in the power of the Kurds. The latter camped at Heresan all winter and used the women and children as they chose. Immediately after the defeat of the Turkish troops under Halil Bey, at Dilman, the Kurds foresaw their expulsion and made an end of such of the female and youthful population as they did not take away in slavery.

In Bashkala there is no one living now. But lately it was a flourishing and picturesque Asiatic city with many well stocked stores and comfortable homes. Many of the houses were two-story structures of brick with tasteful balconies. There was an abundance of good rugs and some European furniture. The population comprised 1,500 Armenians, a few Jews and perhaps 2,000 Moslems. Of the Armenians, 500 women and children had been carried away and divided between the harems of Hassan Bey and Hasi Bey, Kurdish chiefs. The remainder had perished or fled. The Bashkala Moslems had also paid dearly for their handsome city was looted, dismantled and burned. There were fires in a dozen places when the Associated Press correspondent visited the city today with a Russian general and his staff. The ravages of the Moslems had been worked in spite of the strict injunctions issued by both the Russian and Armenian leaders. The Armenian volunteers were particularly enraged because the Moslems, and it is said, the Jewish merchants also, betrayed the Armenians, who had been friendly to the Russians on their first advance on Bashkala last year.

It is characteristic of the bitterness between the two races, that 25 Heresan recruits serving in the Turkish army were killed outright in the way of reprisal when news was received of the Turkish defeat at Dilman.

The correspondent has been riding almost daily with a general of the Russian army or Andranik, the Armenian leader, in pursuit of the elusive Turkish army under Halil Bey. It was disclosed today that at least part of the Turkish forces were in a superb position on the slope of a high mountain, flanked by some still higher. The Russian artillery succeeded in sending the forces to cover, but there was no general engagement. There has been warm cross-firing between outposts, and on May 20 the Armenians succeeded in driving the Kurds from some of their mountain strongholds behind Bashkala and from the eastern side of the pass of Chukh. It yet remains to be seen whether the Turkish forces, which were shelled today, are of full strength.

One thing which impresses an American visitor in this region is the excellence of the grain fields of the upland plains. As good as they are in some places, the country would gain enormously from the application of American irrigation methods and modern agricultural work. Whatever may be the issue of the war, it seems quite possible that this will come to pass. For all Armenians look upon America as their school master.

The London municipal school where girls may learn in six weeks to become grocers' clerks, has been successfully launched in the western part of the city, with a class of thirty. The girls will be trained in all the routine work of assistants in grocery and provision stores. Tuition is free, and pupils unable to support themselves during the six weeks' course are granted $3 a week from the Prince of Wales fund.

If plans for standardizing the gauge of the railways of Australia recommended by the chief engineers of the different lines be carried out, it will mean an expenditure of $180,000,000.

Experts of the Department of Agriculture have estimated that the weeds of the Pacific coast of the United States can be made to yield fertilizers worth more than $180,000,000 a year.

GERMAN TRADE UNIONS GREAT HELP IN THE WAR

Give Efficiency to the Output of Munitions

The Whole German Nation, Says the Cologne Zeitung, With One Accord
Has Picked Up Gauntlet Thrown Before It.

(correspondence of Associated Press.)
Berlin, July 8.—From the beginning of the war the German trade unions have proved a strong help, rather than a hindrance, to the government in its efforts to secure the highest efficiency in output of the various necessities of warfare. The Cologne Zeitung devotes a long article to a tribute to the work of the unions. It says, in part:

"Among the many surprises and disappointments which the present war has brought our enemies, a leading place is taken by the unanimity with which the German nation, irrespective of party and of class, picked up the gauntlet that was thrown down before it. Our foes reckoned with certainty that the dislike of war among the great masses of the people, and the consequent opposition to militarism by the Socialists in the Reichstag, would gravely hamper the mobilization of the army and navy and lead to a weakening of the German forces. All these calculations proved erroneous.

Even among the working classes complete recognition prevails that our enemies were bent on the destruction of Germany—the same Germany that has done more than any other civilized state for the welfare of the working classes, especially by means of its magnificent system of national insurance.

"The trade unions, the vast majority of which are normally in direct opposition to the government and the parliamentary majority, have frankly declared that the widely-ramified social institutions in Germany bind the German workmen more closely to national life as a whole than is the case with the English or French worker. And, indeed, the enemy states are so behindhand in this respect that the German workman does not find it hard to remain a German in body or soul.

The feeling of community with the German empire thus strengthened by social legislation has caused the representatives of organized labor—the trade unions—to set aside since the outbreak of war all trade union interest and to throw into the scale their whole strength for the purpose of bringing to a victorious issue a war forced upon the German nation.

"In regard to industries which have taken over the preparation of war munitions, the trade unions made arrangements to mobilize all the labor required, partly by establishing courses of instruction in the new work, and thus ensuring the highest efficiency in output. Whenever interests of state have demanded a special increase in labor, the unions have put no hindrance in the way. All strikes and wage agitations were instantly cancelled, while the employers, on their part, suspended all lockouts. To avoid fresh disputes between the masters and the men, the unions have especially supported the arbitration committees.

"The unions have, of course, suffered severely from the war in that their subscriptions have fallen off owing to the calling up of members for military service. On April 30 this year the number of trade union members—who represent 77 per cent of all organized labor—serving with the colors was 255,247, or 41.7 per cent.

The feeling of solidarity between masters and men, which has been so brilliantly demonstrated here, and the outpouring of the trade unions to work hand in hand with the authorities and employers to surmount all economic difficulties that seemed insuperable have been overcome with ease. This unity of effort guarantees the economic victory, and at the same time strengthens the conviction of the German nation in a happy issue of the war."

NEW CHRISTMAS SEALS

Design Completed and Approved for the Coming Season.
(State Board of Health.)

Already the red cross seal movement for this year has started. The design of the seal has been made up and has been approved both by the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis and by the American Red Cross. It is expected that the proceeds from the sale of this seal this Christmas will be by far the largest that the history of the movement has ever known.

The anti-tuberculosis work that is carried on as a result of the sale of the Christmas seals has been defined by the conference of Red Cross Seal agents as follows:

- (1) The construction of hospitals or sanatoria for the care of the tuberculous.
- (2) The maintenance of the tuberculous.
- (3) The provision of day or night camps for the tuberculous; the provision and maintenance of dispensaries, visiting nurses, open air schools, fresh air classes, or preventoria for the care or treatment of tuberculous.
- (4) The maintenance of educational or legislative activities which have for their object the prevention of infection with tuberculosis.

The Strain on Submarine Crews.

Service on board submarines while cruising at sea is extremely trying for the men. One of the German submarine captains who was captured, Commander Hansen of the U-16, recently described how it feels to be in a submerged submarine.

"It is fearfully trying on the nerves. Every man does not stand it. When running under sea there is deathlike stillness in the boats as the electrical machinery is noiseless. * * * As the air heats it gets poor and mixed with the fumes of oil from the machinery. The atmosphere becomes fearful. An overpowering sleepiness often attacks new men and one requires the utmost will power to remain awake. I have had men who did not want to eat during the first three days out because they did not want to lose that amount of time from sleep. Day after day spent in such cramped quarters, where there is hardly room to stretch your legs, and constantly on the alert, is a tremendous strain on the nerves."—The August World's Work.

Statistics recently issued show that 2,600 fewer persons emigrated from Denmark in the year 1914 than in 1913. Of the total of 6,206, 5,133 went to the United States.

Southern Life and Trust Company,
Greensboro, N. C.

Leaksville, N. C., May 24, 1915.

Dear Sirs:—

I have just received from Mr. J. W. Norman, your agent here, my fourth policy in the Southern Life and Trust Company. My first policy was taken out in May, 1905; the second in August, 1905; the third in September, 1909, and now I have received the fourth one.

I wish to say, speaking generally, that I am much pleased with the treatment which I have received from your Company. Speaking particularly, I wish to say that I am especially pleased with the results in connection with my first policy, which is now paid up.

I have gone into the figures in connection with this policy, and I find them very interesting. It is a ten payment life policy for $1,000. I paid in all $543.00 in premiums. Had I chosen to surrender the policy I would have received $553.23 in cash—$10.23 more than I paid in, and thus my protection for ten years would have cost me less than nothing.

The dividend accumulations on the policy amounted to $126.23, a little over 23 per cent. of the total premiums.

Rather than surrender the policy, or even draw the dividends in cash, I preferred to use the dividend money to purchase paid-up additional insurance, and as a result I have a policy for $1,302.00, upon which I shall never have to pay another cent, and indeed from which I shall continue to receive dividends, you having advised me that it will still share in the surplus earnings of the company at the end of every five-year period.

It was the fine showing on this policy which led me to give my application to Mr. Norman for my fourth policy.

With best wishes for your Company, I am, yours very truly,

W. W. HAMPTON.

UNITED STATES HAS GREATEST SUBMARINE

This is believed to be a good photograph of G-3, the greatest submarine in the world, built by Simon Lake in his works at Bridgeport, Conn. Mr. Lake and his superintendent refused permission to one who tried to photograph the vessel, insisting that some naval officers had told them this must not be done.

The G-3 is believed to have a steam engine of 1,500 horsepower, and is able to cross the Atlantic and come back without refueling. She might have to be met at sea with oil to bring her to port, but she would be so near the American coast that that would not be difficult.

Though the secrecy with which the naval authorities are working makes it impossible to gain full and accurate information about submarines now building, the statement is made that the G-3 is only one of eight American submarines which are able to cross the ocean and come back and ten more are to be launched very soon.

WAR BRINGING PROSPERITY TO THE AMERICAN NATION

Orders From Allies Total a Billion and a Half, With Prospects of as Much More to Come — Unexpected Demand Has Created Record Activity in Many Industries—Booms Start in Others.

(By A. W. Davis.)

"What commercial effect is the colossal European war having on the United States?"

This is a question that affects the country's business activities of today, and the outlook for the individual citizen's pocketbook for tomorrow. Fortunately conditions already developed permit an encouraging answer.

The close of the country's fiscal year for 1914-15 dovetails within a month with the end of the first year of the war. This makes possible a reasonably accurate survey of the effect of this great struggle upon industrial conditions in the United States.

The result undeniably shows that the United States has reaped financial benefits running into billions of dollars, due to causes incident to the war. With insufficient supplies available at home the nations engaged in the conflict have turned to the United States as a market capable of filling their needs. They have bought in gigantic quantities and American industries have reaped correspondingly large benefits.

Several important facts stand out clearly in this war period resume of our commercial activities.

One is that the demand for domestic origin has been below normal volume during this time.

Another is that our foreign commerce representing for the larger part, war purchases, has attained greater proportions than ever before reached in our national history.

A third feature, and one affecting every citizen is that the cost of living has increased during this period through the advanced prices of food products.

Judged by these deductions it is obvious that whatever measure of prosperity this country enjoys today must be laid to the war in large part, to the opportunity to provide supplies to many of our European neighbors, and not to any commercial or political improvement of our own making.

The 1914-15 records show that the United States achieved in the past fiscal year a favorable trade balance of over one billion dollars, represented by an excess of exports over imports. This figure compares with four hundred million dollars the highest record heretofore made. War purchases have opened new channels of trade, and sales of many commodities have soared to heights hitherto undreamed of.

But this huge trade balance does not reveal the maximum of Europe's purchases that have been made or are to be made. Many record breaking contracts of European origin have been placed on this side of the Atlantic during the past six months. Such contracts aggregate the colossal sum of $1,500,000,000. Few of these orders have been filled, and those that have gone forward have had but little effect upon the billion dollars that the United States is now commercially to the good in its trade with the world. Therefore, the commercial profits of the country for the current year of 1915 should exceed two billion dollars—an amount of wealth that can hardly fail to bring about an unexpected degree of prosperity when distributed throughout the country as it ultimately must be.

Starts Boom in Steel Trade.

These extraordinary foreign purchases—unprecedented in our history—have directly benefited some industries more than others. They have had a remarkable effect upon the steel and iron trade. In the period immediately preceding the war, and up to the beginning of the present year, the volume of business transacted in this industry had the current year of 1915 placed within the past few months, and others are pending which call for fully as much more money. This stupendous expenditure points unquestionably to a period of great prosperity for one of the country's basic industries, and in fact has started an actual boom in the steel trade. Many new channels for the utilization of steel manufactures have been opened.

One of these new channels of vast proportions is the manufacture of war munitions, represented by purchases exceeding $125,000,000 to be filled this year. In addition orders have been placed for structural and rolled steel products as the direct result of the munitions orders, with an estimated value of $25,000,000.

Among other large contracts recently placed are those for railroad equipment for which the demand in the domestic market, due to the financial troubles of many of the railroads, was at a distressingly low ebb. This buying has been on a huge scale and covering orders for cars, locomotives, rails and all classes of railroad equipment. The amount to be spent by Russia, France and England here for these supplies is placed at $102,000,000.

Machinery manufacturers in the United States will also benefit to the extent to about $100,000,000 expended by European buyers for electrical and steam driven machinery, and machine tools.

Record Prices for Copper and Lead.

Exports of copper, spelter, antimony and other metals since the first of the year have been of record proportions due to the need of these metals upon the battlefields of Europe, while the prices at which they are selling are the highest reached in many years. Copper alone to the amount of 150,000,000 pounds has been exported, valued at $35,000,000. These figures never have been equaled in the history of the industry. The result is that copper mines, which were previously shut down or working on part time, are now being pushed to full capacity, and the communities in which they are located are now entering on a new era of prosperity, in which every miner, merchant and citizen is participating.

Both England and France have drawn heavily upon this country for horses and mules needed for army service, and their purchases for these animals up to July 1 of this year have been in excess of $35,000,000. What this has meant to the stock raisers of the United States is evident when it is known that our exports of these animals to both nations in the year prior to the war represented an outlay of only $190,000.

Another industry of large dimensions, favored by war purchases, has been the automobile trade. Up to the end of April, England, France and Russia had purchased over $27,000,000 worth of auto trucks for military service, and the industry of this country of over $24,000,000 compared with the normal export trade to these countries in times of peace.

Not all of the purchases for foreign export have been for war munitions or equipment to facilitate the movement and efficiency of armies. Of the total of over $2,500,000,000 exports to July 1, more than $754,000,000 represents the value of food products, a larger part of which went to feed both the soldiers and millions of non-combatants in the countries now at war.

Sugar Industry Saved by War.

To one American industry the European war has been actually a lifesaver. This industry is the production of sugar both from cane and beets. While sugar does not rank in importance as an agricultural crop with corn and wheat, the amount grown from American soil has reached a figure ranging from 3,500,000,000 to 5,000,000,000 pounds a year. A year ago, following the action of Congress in providing for the free importation of foreign sugar after May 1, 1914, the business of sugar growing in the United States was distinctly on the decline. Many cane mills and beet sugar factories had closed down and it was predicted that 1915 would be the last year in which sugar would be grown to any extent in this country.

The sudden outbreak of the war completely reversed this outlook. With the locking up of the export sugar supplies of Germany and Austria, on which England depends for sugar, that country turned to the United States and made huge purchases of sugar in the American market, with the result that prices advanced nearly three cents a pound and every indication of that it will remain at or above the present figure until the end of the war. Thus an investment of over $400,000,000 in a single American industry has been saved temporarily at least as a direct result of the war. What will happen after its close is problematical but the American sugar growers hope that by that time the financial legislation which threatens their future will be repealed.

America's part in feeding Europe increased the foreign sale of several food products, all of which has largely benefited the farmer.

WHITEVILLE TOBACCO MARKET HAS AUSPICIOUS OPENING.

About 75,000 Pounds Sold First Day Average 5 Cents.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Whiteville, N. C., July 24.—The tobacco market here was formally opened yesterday, and the quantity of tobacco on the floor was much above the expectations of most people. In all there were about 75,000 pounds of leaf tobacco sold. These figures compare advantageously with those of other nearby markets, especially in consideration of the fact that Whiteville has only one market. The sales averaged five cents per pound, the maximum price being 11-1/2 cents.

For many hours before the sales commenced wagon loads of the leaf tobacco continued to arrive in town, and the scene on the outside of the warehouse was an unusual one for this town. At one time it was feared that the floor space would not be large enough to allow of all the tobacco being unloaded, and it had actually to be spread on the driveway. The tobacco for sale was of many grades, some being very inferior. This, however, could only be expected, as the tobacco of the business was ably handled by Mr. Don Quinn, also of Danville. A good corps of buyers were in attendance and others are expected at an early date. SAY BRITISH COTTON PLAN IS IMPRACTICAL

$150,000,000 Not Enough to Pay for Cotton Exports

Cotton Merchants Say England Will Have to Buy Entire Crop to Keep It Away from Germany and Neutrals.

(New York Journal of Commerce.) Cotton merchants who were interviewed yesterday regarding the suggestion advanced by Sir Henry Dalglish in the House of Commons that Great Britain appropriate $150,000,000 for the purchase of that part of the American cotton crop which is available for export, said they did not attach much importance to the proposal and were inclined to refuse to consider the matter seriously. They said the scheme was impractical. The purpose of Great Britain buying a large stock of cotton is to prevent American exporters from shipping the cotton to Germany and to neutral countries in Europe, which may dispose of the cotton to German dealers.

Some of the members of the New York Cotton Exchange who do a spot business in addition to trading in future contracts, expressed the opinion that the farmers of the South would be willing to sell their entire crop to the British if they were permitted to name the price. The producers, they said, are well aware of the fact that the demand for cotton, both for domestic and foreign consumption, is going to be low compared to normal times in the event that the war continues, as it is likely to, and consequently the owners of cotton will be glad to dispose of their property to whom ever wanted to buy it, provided of course, that a satisfactory price was paid for it.

It was pointed out, however, that $150,000,000 would pay for only a comparatively small portion of the cotton crop, notwithstanding current prices. According to Department of Commerce statistics the average export price of cotton during the month of May was 9.4 cents per pound. The average export price for the ten months ending May was 8.4 cents per pound, and for the 12 months last year and 12 cents two years ago.

The total value of cotton exports from the United States during the last three calendar years was as follows: 1912, $623,077,439; 1913, $675,495,653; 1914, $343,904,905. Of the total in 1913 the exports to the United Kingdom amounted to $116,000,000, or 17.5 percent. In 1913 the exports amounted to about $208,000,000 and the exports to Great Britain in 1914 aggregated $148,000,000.

From these figures it will be seen that the proposed purchase of American cotton for the purpose of preventing Germany from getting any of it is only $5,000,000 in extent of the total value made to the United Kingdom last year. Allowing for the decline in prices, cotton merchants declare that the expenditure of $150,000,000 is not enough to accomplish England's desired object.

It was said that unless Great Britain buys practically the entire crop the proposed move to deprive Germany of our supplies will fail for the reason that there will always be enough cotton left in the United States to supply Germany with the staple through neutral countries provided that the Germans are willing to pay the price.

As regards Great Britain buying off the entire crop, it was asserted that the proposition is too preposterous to warrant serious consideration. Unless the entire output is disposed to Great Britain and its allies, it is contended by New York cotton merchants that the scheme advanced by Sir Henry Dalglish is likely to prove ineffective.

Says United States Should Act. A number of the cotton men who were interviewed expressed the opinion that the United States government should take action with regard to Great Britain's concerted practice of holding up ships loaded with American cotton which are destined for neutral countries. One broker said: "In view of the fact that the English have been fairly successful in keeping our cotton from neutrals as well as from German ports, I see no reason why the British government should go to the trouble of buying off any considerable supply of cotton for fear that it might ultimately get into the hands of the Germans. It seems to me that the American government should assert its rights in respect to ocean trade with neutrals. If something is not done soon I am confident that the people in the South will make vigorous protests to President Wilson and the State Department and force action on the part of our government."

Other cotton exporters pointed out that the South would find itself in a precarious position if a way is not paved for making cotton shipments to neutral countries in Europe. Of course, the cotton growers in the South expect to store large quantities of cotton and they have already been promised aid from the banks, both in their localities and in the East and West, but at the same time they fear that in the event exports to neutrals are cut off and Great Britain takes less than it did last year the farmers will find themselves with larger stocks of cotton than they had been figuring on.

Banks Ready to Help. In line with the statements printed in these columns last week respecting the facilities of the banks in the East and the West to help the farmers to move the crops, George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental & Commercial National Bank of Chicago, who was in the city yesterday, said he entertained little fear of the banks finding any difficulty in extending the necessary accommodations in the fall to Western farmers and Southern planters. He said:

"There is a superabundance of money in the West, as a result of the prosperity of the farmer and the black business conditions. The banks are hard put to it to find employment for their surplus funds. With three-quarters of a billion of surplus reserve held by the banks of the country and an export balance of a billion, the country generally is in a splendid shape to face any exigencies that may arise with the fall movement of the crops."

"Though the prospects point to a record wheat crop, the fact must be borne in mind that the farmer will receive only about a dollar a bushel for the wheat, as against $1.50 last year, and the means a smaller shrillness of the wheat means a smaller demand upon the banks."

SUMMER COTTAGE COOKERY

By Mary Jane McClure.

The truly clever woman has no cause to make mental reservations in regard to the joys of a camping or summer cottage vacation. The wide awake housewife has adopted modern methods which enable her to enjoy the beauties of nature in as care free a way as the other members of the family.

Too often these outings, which should be looked forward to with delight, only arouse visions of extra cooking, under difficulties, to the already tired out mother. She knows there will be a "hangrier than usual" family trooping in from bathing, rowing, fishing, tramping, etc., with the customary situation of: "What have you got to eat? I'm starved."

To be always prepared to satisfy this demand the woman who is slow to take advantage of modern improvements will be a slave to the poorly equipped kitchen of the average summer cottage. Change of scenery has its advantages even though the housewife has more cooking to do than at home, but why limit the advantages to mere change of scene when it costs no more to have a real vacation?

Mothers are often great frauds in this matter of their good times. They will assume the spirit of enthusiasm for their dear ones wish them to have. Thus hoodwink the family into thinking that they enjoy staying in the little cottage kitchen while the others are reveling in the rare days in the country.

Such self-inflicted drudgery is a relic of the Stone Age and is never really appreciated. The family would be much more pleased and benefited if mother went on the tramp, etc., with them. Important problems and differences come up every day that she alone, with her wealth of experience, can explain or smooth over.

By judicious buying the housewife can manage so that she will get the full benefit of her outing, at the same time materially adding to the psychological value of the trip for all. She will be surprised at the improvement in health and spirits if she will just "let go" of her prehistoric idea that she must do every bit of the cooking herself. In these days of specialization where she would do well to let the specialists do the drudgery for her. Her ingenuity can be exercised in daintily serving the nutritious foods they prepare.

A visit to the immaculate kitchens where expert chefs in shining white linen aprons and caps prepare food products now in general use by busy and progressive people, will convince her of the excellence of these products. The meats are cooked at just the right temperature and delicately seasoned. Never any possibility of giving valuable time, energy and fuel to the cooking of meat that turns out "as tough as sole leather." No worry as to whether there will be enough for extra demands.

One of the great summer advantages of dry sausage, aside from its high food value, is that it keeps indefinitely without ice.

For real summer comfort lay in a supply of canned meats, chicken, summer sausage, soup and Extract of Beef. Then with a case of Grape Juice and a pair of pure leaf lard on hand, there will be material for refreshment and nutriment at hand for the most tired and hungry trampers.

When ordering canned goods always demand a brand that bears the inscription—U. S. Inspected and Passed. Escalloped Fish—Boil good sized fresh fish in salted water; pick out meat, add one-third quantity bread crumbs, two hard-boiled eggs minced; season with salt, pepper, dash of nutmeg, piece of lemon. Add one teaspoon Extract of Beef. Bind together with butter or cream. Place in buttered baking dish, sprinkle with bread crumbs and eggs and bake two hours before frying. Have a little butter and brown in oven.

Mock Venison—Brown two tablespoonfuls butter, add two tablespoonfuls flour and brown. Add one cup stock and when sauce thickens, two cups Roast Mutton cut in thin slices. Season with one tablespoonful Worcestershire sauce, one teaspoonful lemon juice, one tablespoonful currant jelly, salt and paprika to taste. When heated add one-half cup of Grape Juice and serve.

Friend Sandwiches—To make these delicious morsels, cut the bread as thin as possible, spread both sides with softened butter, then sprinkle grated cheese over the butter, put the slices together compactly, let them stand at least two hours before frying. Have plenty of butter in frying pan, fry sandwiches on one side, turn and brown on the other. Season with paprika. Instead of cheese, use potted tongue or chicken as a filling and fry the same way. Serve creamed potatoes with these. They are very appetizing.

Baked Bean Salad—Remove baked beans from the can and marinate with French dressing. Mix with half cup chopped celery and salad dressing. Arrange in a suitable dish on lettuce leaves. Lima beans, French beans and baked beans may be made into a variety of salads with the addition of potted meats, fish, chicken, or tongue. Vary by adding olives, peppers and beans, or greens, such as parsley, watercress etc., and mixing with either French or mayonnaise dressing.

Egg Salad—Boil the eggs hard, cut in halves crosswise, remove the yolks and mash them to a paste with an equal quantity of Salsami sausage. Mix with one teaspoonful of melted butter, two tablespoonfuls of cream and season to taste. Form into small balls. Cut the whites of the eggs in thin rings. Mix with mayonnaise. Arrange the eggs on a lettuce leaf in a suitable dish and garnish with mayonnaise dressing.

Grape Sponge Pudding—Bring one cup of grape juice and one cup of water to a boil, thicken with two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch (previous by mixed smooth in cold water). Add one-half cup of sugar and a small pinch of salt. Let mixture cook of two eggs to a stiff froth. Slowly pour the hot mixture onto the eggs and beat briskly until it is all taken up. Serve very cold in individual cups with a custard.

Fruit Salad—Slice half a grapefruit and two oranges. Cover with one-half cup of sugar and let stand while preparing apples and celery. Using a silver knife, peel and dice three apples. Add a sprig of diced celery and one-half cup nut meats to sugared fruit. Mix thoroughly. Pour over all one-half pint of grape juice.

Grape Float—To each glass two-thirds full of plain lemonade, add a cube of ice and grape juice to within an inch of the top of the glass. Pour grape juice in very carefully on the ice, that it will float on top. A very pretty beverage for a "color" luncheon.

An international congress which plans to take steps for the avoidance of unnecessary suffering among animals on the battlefield is now meeting at Geneva. Delegates representing 168 human societies from all parts of the world are present.

A TRIBUTE TO MRS. NARCISSE SMITH.

The subject of this sketch was born in Whiteville August 22, 1829. She joined the Methodist church in early girlhood, being but 11 years old when she professed faith in Christ.

She was married to Samuel Beccote Smith February 7, 1850. She was the mother of six children, two of whom joined the happy choir above in early childhood. September 21, 1893, her husband passed away, leaving her to struggle through the closing days of the Civil War and the Reconstruction period.

She was brave in widowhood, looking ever to Him who has promised to be a Father to the fatherless. She was modest and retiring in manner, ardent in friendship, ever careful in the management of the affairs of her home, a marvel of industry and neatness. Her deeds of charity were more as from friend to friend than as cold charity. She loved her church and was found in her accustomed seat till feebleness prevented her presence there.

The midnight hour had slipped by but a few minutes Friday night, July 9, 1915, when the gentle spirit took its flight to realms beyond. After a beautiful funeral service conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. T. Pate, at her home, her remains were taken followed by a concourse of sorrowing friends, to the cemetery in Whiteville, and laid to rest, her bed embowered with beautiful flowers.

Surviving her are one sister, Miss Sophia Byrne, and four children, Mesdames J. A. Baldwin and J. D. Maulsby, of Whiteville; J. G. Patterson, Thomasboro, Ga., and Mr. D. I. Smith, Sellars, S. C.

Women, who have gradually replaced men on the German railroads as ticket choppers at the stations, as guards, etc., are now being installed by the management of the Bromberg railroad as action hands. The Bromberg management has jurisdiction over the limits of Greater Berlin, and has put in women along the greater part of its line. In some cases women also are acting as station masters. They receive 2.50 marks (70 cents) daily.

Sylvester Black.

Heavy-Weight Champion Jess Willard or whoever stands in his shoes in the year of grace 1935, A. D., must begin to look to his laurels.

America's paperweight champions, William and Sylvester Black, aged 19 months exactly, have challenged the world.

Just at present the twins weigh in at thirty-five pounds each. No two peas in a pod were ever more like. Even Papa and Mama Black—whisper it—have been heard to differ over their identity. As yet they wear no colors and their trunks bear a suspicious resemblance to the garments mothers pin on infants.

But when visited at their training camp, the parlor of the Black residence at 3549 Flourway street, Chicago, one day last week, Battling Bill had just knocked out Sylvester in the third round with a terrific baby right cross to the jaw which might have been a miniature rival of Willard's own. Referee Papa Black had counted Sylvester out and Chief Trainer Mama Black was busily restoring him with kisses.

A boxing expert who witnessed Sylvester's finish made the following report:

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS.

Round One—They shook hands in the middle of the ring and Bill landed a left tap on Syl's nose, following it with a right cross to the jaw. They clinched and Syl showed superior skill in close, hammering Bill in the place where he keeps his porridge with short right and left jabs. Syl landed a light blow on Bill's jaw, but this was evened up by Bill a second later when he planted a wicked right under Syl's pink ear. The round closed with both scattering safety pins furiously in the middle of the ring. Bill's round.

Round Two—Syl, evidently refreshed by his milk bottle, rushed Bill to the ropes and landed several infant, but vicious swings to Bill's midriff. Bill clinched and held until separated by the referee, and then got Syl going with a terrific right across to the jaw. Syl toddled into Chief Trainer Black's arms and hung on to her skirts despite Bill's efforts to push him away and land the finishing punch. Syl's diplomacy saved him here and he was beginning to nod at bell time. Bill's round.

BABY CHAT HERE.

Round Three—This round opened cheerfully, both chatting away at a rapid rate in baby consonants and gurgles. Syl measured Bill with a straight left and followed with two rights to the heart, but Bill shook them off and kept coming. It was evident here that Syl was beginning to think of his milk bottle again, for all his blows lacked steam, and he kept one eye on Chief Trainer Black. Bill followed him around, however, blocking all his leads and side-stepping his swings. Occasionally he stepped inside of a left and grabbed Sylvester around the belt. Syl forgot the milk bottle and started a right swing which never landed, Bill jolting his head back with a well-timed left and landing a formidable right cross to the point of the jaw. Syl gurgled more consonants, kicked up his heels at the count of nine and stretched out on the floor and was counted out. Bill's fight.

One remarkable thing about the fight was the fact that the contestants used no harsh language.

AN EDIFYING TALK.

When interviewed on his defeat Sylvester lifted his eyebrows and announced:

"Grrr! gurgyl gikik ma dada." This challenge was carried back to William, who stuck out his chin. All he said was:

"Daa daa glump crli ump."

Leaving it, of course, still an open question. Which is something the public will have to decide for itself, as we insist upon remaining neutral. Chief Trainer Mama Black, who has brought up one 8-year-old son, James J., to be a champion skater and punching bag artist and otherwise accomplished, insists on a rigid diet for her twins. They keep in fighting trim on this, their daily menu:

Baked potatoes—in large quantities.
Bacon fat—in moderation.
Sugar of milk.
Lime water.

Their training regime also includes plenty of sleep—from 11 to 12 hours a day. Meals in the Black household are always served on the stroke of the clock, never a minute after dinnertime and never a second before the breakfast hour. The infant pugilists also thrive on abundant exercise in the open air, taken at stated intervals.

Papa Black, publicity manager and referee for both fighters, which in itself is an unusual situation, in discussing his winners declared that he believed strongly in physical culture and challenged "any pair of twins of their age in the world in regard to perfection and physical fitness of the human body." Mr. Black also acts as timekeeper and announcer in his sons' boxing bouts.

GET AN EARLY START.

"I began to train the twins when they were two weeks old," explained Referee Black. "Many people refuse to believe that this was possible, but I know that the little muscles and tissues cannot be trained too early. From the very first I taught them to lay themselves out on a cushion and extend their arms out five times with a swimming motion. Then I would have them take the same exercise with the arms up five times, and then grab their ankles and touch toes to the forehead five times.

EARLY DEVELOPMENT.

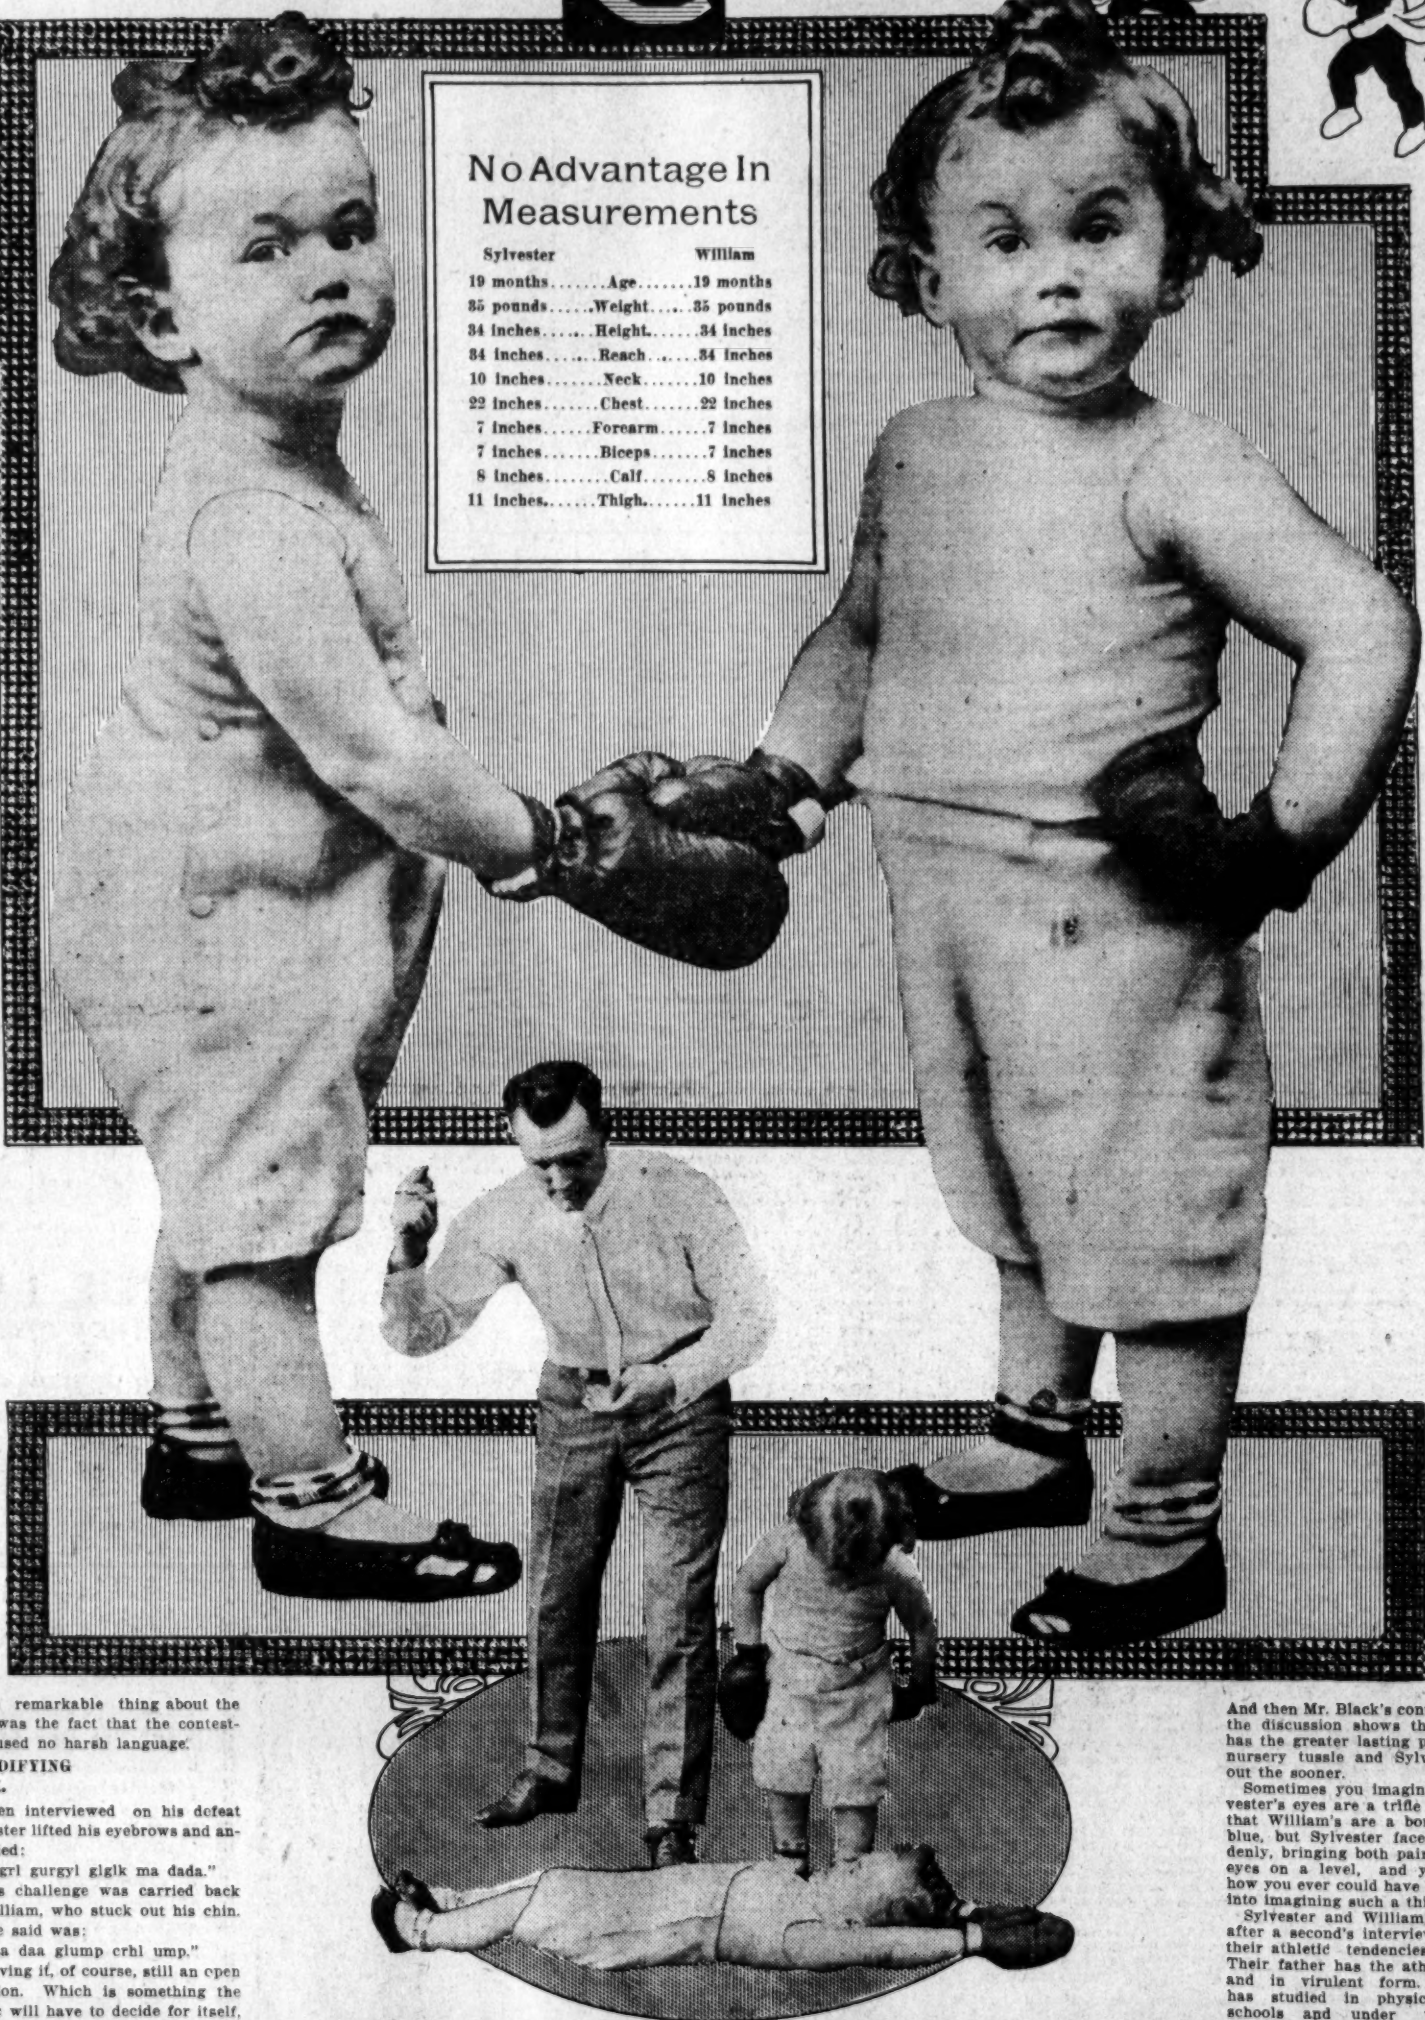

"After a while they became so accustomed to the movements that I would only have to snap my fingers and say 'Exercise' and they would drag out the cushions, lay down in a second, and go through the same thing all over again.

"They have been able to hold themselves suspended by their arms since they were two months old and can hold the position at least 30 seconds. Another favorite exercise of theirs is that of suspending their forms rigidly from one chair to another.

"I have always insisted that they take their exercise at a certain time either in the morning or at night, and also that they have a certain time for eating," continued Mr. Black.

"They have been able to walk wheelbarrow fashion on their hands since they were two months old, too, and they did this long before they began to use their feet. Their weight has always been two or three pounds over the natural one. Each weighed eight pounds at birth."

ONE DIFFERENCE IN 'EM.

If there is any difference at all in the similarity of infant perfection in the twins only their parents have discovered it. Sylvester—or it may be William—we're not certain which—was in just the merest trifle with the left bootie. But, on the other hand, as Mrs. Black proudly points out, Sylvester's reach outdistances William's by a fraction of an inch.

And then Mr. Black's contribution to the discussion shows that William has the greater lasting powers in a nursery tussle and Sylvester tires out the sooner.

Sometimes you imagine that Sylvester's eyes are a trifle brown and that William's are a bona fide sky blue, but Sylvester faces you suddenly, bringing both pairs of bright eyes on a level, and you wonder how you ever could have been fooled into imagining such a thing.

Sylvester and William, you learn after a second's interview, come by their athletic tendencies honestly. Their father has the athletic "bug" and in virulent form. Mr. Black has studied in physical culture schools and under well-known wrestlers and health experts and he intends the training of his sons to be as scientific as Chicago's advantages will allow.

THEY INHERITED MUSCLE.

About the Black household the twins are becoming such batteries of activity that they are almost too much for even their mother to handle. They are in training every day and practice with the dumb-bells or standing on their heads. After the ice is broken when there are visitors present they jump up gayly to grab the piece of broomstick held in their father's hands Chinning themselves they stick their curly, reddish blonde combs up cheerfully over the top and shout "Hello" and "Bye" at you in consonant baby talk while they dangle their legs.

And the only warning to Jess Willard and the future heavy-weight champions of the world as to the loss of their title has to be translated from this:

"Dada kik gymp daa."

William Black.

WHAT THEY ALL SAY.

Sylvester Black—Goo goo glug glump yama yama. (This translated as meaning that good milk makes strong babies.)

William Black—Goo goo glug glump yama yama. (In these code words is contained the statement that early to bed and late to rise makes a baby a jewel to his parents.)

Mama Black, (chief dietitian)—They're just like their father—both of them. But if they keep in training he'll have to stop work and take care of them himself. They'll be too much for me to manage.

Papa Black, (publicity manager and referee)—Jess Willard or his successor won't be in it with these twins. They can't be beaten—in 1935.

Expert Instructions.

"Here," said Mr. Tellitt, when his wife was trying to insert the point of the scissors in the tight wrapper of a rolled magazine that had just been left by the postman. "Here, that's no way to open that wrapper. Let me show you how it should be done, and after this you will have no more trouble. You go at it wrong. You shouldn't try to rip the wrapper down the smooth side of the package, but should just slip your finger in here where the ends of the pages show, and—"

He stuck his finger under the wrapper along the edge of the leaves, but only tore away about a quarter of an inch of it.

"This is tolerably tight," he muttered, and took the scissors. "I'll work it this way. You see, the way you were going about it you would have torn the cover, if not several of the leaves."

He pushed the scissors into the the wrapper and began moving, but the paper was tough and the scissors slipped out after going about an inch. He tried it again, with no better luck. Mrs. Tellitt looked on with a well-why-don't-you-do-it expression, and Mr. Tellitt jabbed and jammed with the scissors, bringing away little scraps of the wrapper, until he grew angry and stabbed the magazine with the weapon until he got one end free of the wrapper. Then he snatched the free leaves with both hands and ripped and tore the thing from the wrapper.

Covered by the Rules.

A bright little girl in a large school applied to her teacher for leave to be absent half a day, on a plea that her mother had received a telegram which stated that company was on the way.

"It's my father's half-sister and her three boys," said the pupil anxiously, and mother doesn't see how she can do without me because those boys always act so dreadfully."

"I think it might come under this head, Miss Rules," said the girl, pointing, as she spoke, to the words "Domestic affliction."

Knew Which was Which.

Johnny's mother gave him two 5-cent pieces, one for candy, the other for the Sunday school collection. Lighthearted, he was tossing the coins in the air on his way to the church, when suddenly one eluded his grasp and disappeared through a cellar grating. Down on his knees he peered into the dark pit, only to realize his loss. Then, looking thoughtfully first into his hand, next at the cellar steps, he remarked: "Well, there goes the Lord's nickel!"

Mrs. Tellumwhott has cogitated deeply upon the inner philosophy of life, and she says that no matter which spring bonnet a woman buys she will wish she had taken the other one.

Market Very Little Disturbed by Note Germany—Disappointing Liverpool Market Influenced.

New York, July 24.—The cotton market today appeared to be very little disturbed by the prospective note to Germany and was influenced entirely by domestic conditions, among which weather reports and a prospective curtailment by New England mills furnished the principal bearish factors.

The opinion regarding the note was that while it contained grave possibilities it had been pretty well discounted. The fact that the South was a seller during the forenoon emphasized the bearish construction put on the news by the trading element and induced moderate pressure from traders here who also informed near the close that Texas was selling spots for September delivery at less than tender basis.

The market was steady at a decline of 4 to 5 points, influenced by a disappointing Liverpool market where selling was thought to have been influenced by fear that the German note would produce a decided weakness on this side. There was practically no improvement during the day and the close, while steady, was 8 to 10 points net lower and about the bottom of the season. Manchester cables were bearish owing to the lack of improvement in eastern markets and the difficulty in yarns.

Cotton closed steady.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

Closing Again Was at a Loss—Volume of Trading Small.

New Orleans, July 24.—Cotton closed today at a loss of 7 to 8 points, practically the lowest of the season. Trading was small in volume and neither side was aggressive. A feature of the morning was the report that large American mills would close for three weeks in August. This was a depressing influence until it was explained that the corporation in question usually closes down during August to allow repairs to its machinery. The market displayed no recuperative power, although the closing was officially quiet and steady.

had hung to his offing even in death. Then followed an old woman, who had gone aboard the ship to watch the youthful pleasure of her grandchildren, or a little girl with bare legs and booties with gay ribbons added against the lace of her holiday gown. One thrill passed through the crowd as word came from the steamer that a girl baby had been found alive among the hundreds of dead in the ship. The child was found in a starboard state room where she had been held from the water by a chair that jammed against the berth. The baby only half awakened as it was carried to land. Its mother could not be found.

Two women were found alive in another stateroom in a protruding side of the Eastland, but that ordered the arrest of any number had escaped death in the trap.

There were still 1,000 persons in the hold when the three persons were taken out alive and the explorers of the hull said that all were dead.

Work of tagging the bodies of the dead and placing them in accessible places for identification proceeded all day and night.

Identification was slow and scenes at the morgues were as affecting as those at the river when the steamer capsized. Mothers fell across the biers of children whom they had sent away a few hours before on what was intended to be a day of pleasure.

Driven Back With Clubs.
Members of the crowd waiting outside the army stabled the doors late tonight and the police were forced to use their clubs to drive them back. Several persons were injured, it was said.

The first squads admitted to the army consisted mainly of the curious. Coroner Hoffman, through a megaphone, cried out that he would arrest "in the name of decency any one who entered the army without reason other than the satisfaction of morbid curiosity."

As fast as the bodies were identified, they were removed again to undertaking establishments to make room for others waiting outside in ambulances.

Coroner Hoffman announced late tonight that he had ordered the arrest of every official of the Indiana Transportation Company, which leased the Eastland. No individuals were mentioned in the coroner's announcement.

Coroner Hoffman at 11 o'clock tonight said that according to the information at hand he had hopes that the total dead from the capsizing of the steamer Eastland would not exceed 2,000. The number of bodies in the morgue, according to official count, was 842. While others were added later, there was some duplication, it was disclosed.

At 9 o'clock tonight 831 bodies had been removed to the second regiment armory. They were laid in rows of 15, across the whole length of the armory. Revised figures showed 176 bodies had been identified. Of 114 partially identified bodies, 47 were men, 48 women, seven boys and 12 girls.

The armory, situated in a thickly settled part of the West Side, was surrounded this evening by a great throng. Most of the victims were residents of the West Side.

It was hoped to have the recovered bodies all in the armory by 10 o'clock and until that time the bodies were kept in the morgue.

Accordingly, thousands formed in life hours before the great doors were opened, awaiting a chance to seek traces of kin and friends believed lost.

GUARDS PLACED TO PROTECT MUNITIONS PLANT FROM BOMBS

Brooklyn Company Fears Damage by Cracks and Others.
New York, July 24.—Announcement was made today that two guards will be placed on the Brooklyn end of the Manhattan bridge to protect from "cracks" and other works of the E. W. Bliss Co., which is manufacturing large quantities of war supplies for Europe. Guards have been patrolling the plant, which is directly under the bridge.

The first intimation that the Bliss Company feared an attack, came in a letter to Bridge Commissioner Krack, asking permission for the placing of guards. H. C. Seaman, secretary and treasurer of the company, explained that all entrances to the plant are guarded and the only way damage could be done, was by dropping bombs from the bridge. Mr. Seaman would not admit that threatening letters had been received by the company.

DAMAGE BY EXPLOSION ON BRITISH STEAMER CRAGSIDE.

Origin Is Not Known—Vessel Was to Have Sailed Last Night.
New York, July 24.—An explosion of unknown origin occurred in the forward hold of the British freight steamer Cragside at her dock in the Hudson river here today and was followed by a fire which, however, was speedily checked. The Cragside, which was to leave here tonight for an English port with a cargo of 100,000 bags of sugar, will be delayed a few days.

The fire and water damage to the steamer was estimated at $10,000, while the cargo of sugar valued at $144,000 is believed to be a total loss.

SEFFRAGE SOCIETY BUYS CAR SOLD FOR TAXES.

Dr. Shaw Refused to Pay Because She Thought Assessment Too High.
Media, Pa., July 24.—The little yellow car, "Easter's Victory," presented to Dr. Anna Howard Shaw by New York supporters of the Woman's Suffrage leader and seized for non-payment of taxes, was put up at a considerable sale today, bought in for $320 by the woman's suffrage society of Delaware county and returned to Dr. Shaw. There were two other bidders.

The sale was not made until after A. P. Johnson, of the Delaware court, had refused to grant an injunction restraining the constable from selling the car.

DESTROYER NOT ENDANGERED.

Report That the Ericsson Was Nearly Sunk Is Denied.
Philadelphia, July 24.—Officials of the New York Shipbuilding Co. today denied the report circulated last night that the torpedo boat destroyer Ericsson had been nearly sunk Tuesday night by the opening of a sea-cock in the vessel. It was admitted that a little water had entered a compartment of the destroyer from a hose blow-out.

WHITMAN SAYS STORY OF MURPHY FRAMED UP

Tombs prison to place the blame for the murder upon the condemned man. Murphy, shackled to Deputy Warden Johnson, of Sing Sing, was hurried to the mansion and back to the railroad station in one of the state automobiles. The Irons were loosened during the conference. A transcript of the talk, secured by the District Attorney Perkins last night, will be used in the hearing before Justice Ford Monday in the application of Becker's attorneys for a new trial on the ground of new evidence. Murphy's story of the alleged plot in the Tombs forms one of the bases for the application.

During the conference the Governor discovered that on July 20 Murphy had talked with Becker in the death cell in Sing Sing to which he gained admittance by posing as a singer of the Mutual Welfare League of the prison. The following day, W. Bourke Cockran, attorney for Becker, was informed by Murphy of the alleged conspiracy three years before. The Governor said he believed during the death cell conference Becker and Murphy arranged the story of the alleged plot.

A man who claims to be a baron is in jail in New York. It is said that he is a bogus nobleman, in which case some silly heiress has made a narrow escape.
